Chou Expected To Set High Price On Fliers

U.N. Delegates Eye Red Chinese Tack In Coming Conference

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Diplomats speculated today that Red China's Chou En-lai may set a stiff price for release of 11 imprisoned American airmen when he receives U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in Peiping week after next.

The Red Chinese premier indicated in his assent yesterday that he considers the case of the airmen closed.

But delegates acquainted with Peiping's line of reasoning predicted Chou would get down to brass tacks after first insisting his government was in the right and bringing up some complaints against the United States.

Hammarskjold asked for the talks Dec. 10 after the General Assembly voted 47-5 to condemn Red China's imprisonment of the airmen as spies. The Assembly called on the secretary general to intercede for their release. Opposition votes were cast by the Soviet bloc.

HAMMARSKJOLD received Chou's reply the same day the Assembly wound up its ninth session, rejecting Communist attacks on U. S. policy in the Far East.

As the session ended the main spotlight was focused on Peiping where Hammarskjold is expected to go shortly after Christmas. Diplomats believe Chou will seek to guide the talks along the following general lines:

1. He will try to impress on Hammarskjold that his regime is completely in control of China.

2. He will protest to the secretary general that the Americans are maintaining what the Chinese have labeled a "nest of spies" on the Nationalist stronghold of Formosa and will warn that the Reds will not consider releasing the airmen until such activities cease.

3. Having thus set the stage he will probably consent to hear Hammarskjold's plea on behalf of the airmen and other imprisoned U. N. personnel.

As a neutral mediator, Hammarskjold would hardly be in a position to bargain, delegates pointed out, but he could relay back Chou's demands.

Liberal Education Said Necessity

COLUMBUS (AP)—"Science and technology have made liberal education a necessity," Dr. Howard Lowry, president of the College of Wooster, told 544 graduates at Ohio State University yesterday.

"They have put before us the literal choice of life or death. They have showed us tangible goals we can achieve at new levels of comprehension and cooperation," he said during the autumn quarter commencement exercises.

Reminding students that a liberal education is not gained through formal study alone, Dr. Lowry stressed that "a life of liberal reading and reflection is something beyond the ivy, something that can start anywhere and at any age."

Reds Repeat Rap

TOKYO (AP)—Peiping radio, in a more belligerent tone than usual, today repeated Red China's assertion that the United Nations has no right to intervene in the case of the 11 U. S. fliers imprisoned on charges of spying.

Mendes-France Asks Vote Of Confidence On Monday

PARIS (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France demanded a vote of confidence today after the National Assembly rebuffed his government on its Indochina budget. The vote, set for next Monday, may delay scheduled debate on German rearmament.

Mendes-France staked his government on the budget issue at the end of an all-night Assembly session during which the deputies defeated the premier 301-291 in one voting and gave him only slim majorities on two others. The balloting was on technical points concerning the Indochina budget.

The adverse vote, Mendes-France's first setback in six months in office, left his position considerably weakened but his opponents did not appear eager to throw him out of office on the Indochina issue. They want him to be saddled with the responsibility for pushing through ratification of the Paris treaties to restore German sovereignty and give her the right to rearm.

Assembly debate on the pacts had been slated to open Monday and was expected to wind up late Thursday. Now much of Monday likely will be taken up by the confidence vote. The final decision on the Paris pacts may not come until Christmas Eve, when the deputies will be anxious to return home.

Parliamentary opposition to Mendes-France organized while he was tied up in meetings yesterday with ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He scheduled to talk with U. S.

Water Resources Inventory Urged By Ohio Group

COLUMBUS (AP)—The governor's Advisory Committee on Ohio Water Resources says the state's rainfall normally is sufficient to meet water needs of the future "if properly managed."

But the committee also noted in its preliminary report: "The expanding population and growth of industry and agriculture are making increasingly heavy demands on the water resources."

The committee called for "an accelerated program for basic inventories of the water and other natural resources" in each area drained by any river and its tributaries. Such an inventory is necessary to determine costs and benefits of "large scale reservoir projects, pipe lines, and other major construction projects," the report said.

Girl, 17, Awarded $32,500 In Suit

DELAWARE (AP)—Facial disfigurements suffered in an accident brought $32,500 to Virginia Wolfe, 17, of Detroit. Common pleas court awarded the sum yesterday. The crash near here Aug. 17, 1953, involved the Wolfe family car and one owned by the Cooper & Ferrell Auto Sales of Portsmouth. Roy Kramer, 48, driver of the sales car, was fatally injured.

Civilians To Hold A-Bomb Trigger

NATO Chieftains In Agreement On Defense Against Red Attack

PARIS (AP)—Leaders of the Atlantic Alliance announced today agreements that civilian governments must keep the final say on the use of atomic weapons in the defense of Western Europe.

The decision was disclosed in the final communique issued following a two-day meeting of the foreign, defense and finance ministers of the 14 North Atlantic Treaty Organization members.

The conference approved a defense plan based on the use of thermonuclear weapons if needed to hurl back any invasion.

The decision did not appear to bind the United States to consult with the Allies in cases of grave emergency nor to change any standing instructions which may already have been given to Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme Allied commander for Europe.

The "new look" pattern for defense was drafted by the chiefs of staff of the member countries.

THE UNITED STATES is known to favor consultation before resorting to atomic warfare but has been opposed to a binding commitment which might be unworkable in emergencies.

There was no mention in the announcement of a French scheme for a small "political standing group" with power to "pull the trigger" if full NATO consultation proved impossible.

In their communique, the ministers said they were convinced member countries must maintain strong armies over a long period to deter aggression.

Soviet policy, they said, continues to be backed by "ever-increasing military power" and is aimed at weakening and dividing the Western World.

In the face of current pressure from Moscow for "coexistence," the NATO Council declared:

"Soviet policy contributes no constructive solution for ensuring world security and for maintaining the freedom of peoples. It provides no ground for believing that the

Nationalist Paper Raps Swap Idea

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—An influential Chinese Nationalist newspaper asserted today that any swap of Chinese students in the United States for the 11 U. S. airmen jailed by Red China would be degrading to U. S. leadership.

The independent United Daily News suggested instead that the students be sent to Formosa.

The newspaper spoke out following reports that the United States might consider trading 35 Chinese students now in America for the 11 airmen imprisoned as spies.

Woman Plays Anonymous Santa

CHICAGO (AP)—An elderly woman played the role of Santa Claus yesterday and, after leaving her gift of $1,000 for a chapel, slipped away before identified.

The money, ten $100 bills, was in an envelope the woman handed a receptionist at the Harris Trust and Savings Bank in the loop. It was marked: "Frank R. Elliott, for the Presbyterian Home Chapel."

Elliott, a past president of the bank and president of the home's board of directors, got the envelope with the $1,000 and a note signed, "from a friend for the Presbyterian Home."

"An anonymous gift is truly an unselfish one," Elliott said.

Key Solons Give Cautious OK To Ike's Manpower Setup

WASHINGTON (AP)—Key lawmakers in a Congress never before willing to vote for universal military training gave cautious approval today to President Eisenhower's program of boosting the military reserves while cutting armed services strength.

Both Democratic and Republican members generally approved a Defense Department announcement yesterday of plans to excuse 100,000 youngsters yearly from the draft if they volunteer for six months active training and follow it with 9 years reserve duty.

But most of the legislators willing to comment keyed their acceptance of this proposal to changes Congress may want to make in a program generally regarded as reviving in limited form UMT recommendations that have been unpopular in the past.

As outlined by the Defense Department, the Eisenhower plan would permit 17-year-olds to volunteer at $30 a month for six months training and lengthy reserve duty in the National Guard, Army or Marine Corps units.

The draft would continue, the National Guard would remain unchanged, and the Navy and Air Force would rely on other programs to build up their reserves.

The over-all program would provide a five million man reserve by 1959, including three million in a ready reserve subject to immediate call, and two million in a secondary reserve composed largely of veterans.

Secretary of Defense Wilson estimated the cost at $1.1 billion yearly, about $350 million more than the present cost of National Guard and reserve activities.

As the stronger reserve comes into being, tentative plans call for a 468,000-man cut in the present armed forces strength to a level of 2,700,000 men in June 1959. Wilson did not estimate the saving this would bring.

Frightened Girl Killed By Train On Texas Trestle

ALBANY, Tex. (AP)—A 12-year-old schoolgirl lost a race with a freight train across a trestle near her grandmother's house yesterday.

Margie Dell Macon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arless Macon of Cookfield, about 7 miles west of this West Texas city, was killed under the train's wheels.

Her sister, Barbara, 13, escaped by clinging to one edge of the trestle as the train thundered over her sister's body.

Barbara said the two girls had just got off a school bus and were crossing the trestle en route to visit their grandparents. They heard a train coming and moved close to the edge of the trestle.

Then Margie became frightened and began to run down the trestle. The train overtook her before she reached safety.

Drunk Attempts To Poll Jurors

CLEVELAND (AP)—A drunk tried last night to poll the jurors in the murder trial of Dr. Samuel Sheppard.

While the seven men and five women jurors, who quit for the night 12 hours after they began deliberations, were checking into their quarters at the Hotel Carter, a young man began bothering some of them.

Before Jury Bailiff Simon Steenstra chased him away, the young man yelled to some friends: "They won't talk."

Jury Starts Second Day Of Deliberations

Fate Of Cleveland Doctor Hanging Balance On Decision

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel Sheppard waits through the most anxious hours of his life today.

The jurors in his murder trial resumed their deliberations this morning after 12 hours of discussion yesterday. Not the slightest hint has come from behind the guarded doors of the conference room as to whether they are near a verdict or how they are voting.

Sheppard is accused of murdering his pregnant wife, Marilyn.

If the jury finds him guilty of murder in the first degree, and does not recommend mercy, the law requires that he must die in the electric chair.

As the long, slow hours passed, courtroom observers began to speculate about the possibility that the jurors were deadlocked.

However, they have an enormous mass of material to consider. The written record of the nine-week trial amounts to more than a million words. And there are 214 "exhibits," including photographs, letters, personal possessions of the accused man, the blood-spattered coverings of the bed where Marilyn Sheppard died.

LAWYERS SAID it might take many hours just to examine all this before the discussions get started in earnest.

The seven men and five women jurors looked tired, and some of them seemed a little grim last night when Judge Edward Blythin excused them and sent them to a hotel for the night.

There is no time limit to the jury's deliberations, the judge said later. He declared:

"I don't think there is any limit, and even Sunday is a fine day. As long as the defendant is in court. I don't think there is any law against deliberating or returning a verdict on Sunday."

Marilyn Sheppard's body was found July 4 on a blood-soaked bed in an upstairs room at her home in Bay Village, a prosperous suburb 12 miles west of

Korea 'Orphan' Only Boy With Imagination

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—The GIs called him Jim Bob. The police called him Syngman Rhee. He was just 11.

Police picked him up for loitering near a military installation and this was his fearful story:

He had been "orphaned on the battle fields of Korea." Sympathetic GIs had adopted him and brought him to Okinawa. He had worked as a houseboy for them until they went home to the U. S.

Now he was homeless in an alien land. He even had forgotten the Korean tongue of his fathers. All he could speak was English, American style. It gushed out in a stream.

U. S. military officials urged that he be permitted to stay on Okinawa. Sympathetic immigration officials made him a "prisoner at large" while they sought ways to save him from deportation.

At this point, a distraught Japanese showed up and identified Jim Bob Syngman Rhee as his wayward son who had run away a month ago from his Okinawa home. The family had come from Japan two years ago.

And his teacher verified that the lad had "an excellent command of English and also an excellent imagination."

So "Jim Bob Syngman Rhee" isn't going anywhere—except back to school.

Cleveland on Lake Erie. The state says she was struck on the head 35 times. A weapon never was produced.

The Sheppard home, a two-story white frame building, fronts on the lake. The backyard faces the shore highway to Toledo.

Sheppard, complaining of injuries he said he suffered in fights with a "bushy-haired" intruder, was taken almost immediately to Bay View Hospital. The osteopathic hospital, a converted brick mansion, is controlled by his family.

From the first, Sheppard said he fell asleep on a downstairs couch and was later awakened by his wife's cries for help. He said he ran upstairs, was knocked out, regained consciousness and found Marilyn had been beaten.

THEN HE HEARD a noise downstairs and ran down only to be knocked out again in a fight on the lake beach. He came to the second time in shallow water, he declared.

Sheppard met Marilyn at Cleveland Heights High School where he was on the football, basketball and track teams. She was a year older than he was. They started going "steady" there and continued after he went to Hanover, Ind., College and later to Los Angeles General Hospital for his osteopathic training.

They had one child, 7-year-old Chip, who was asleep in an adjoining bedroom when Marilyn was hacked to death.

Officer Tests Youth's Car, Wrecking It

FREMONT (AP)—Patrolman Adolph Kupka noticed the motorist kept pumping the brake pedal of his car, stopped at the top of a hill.

Kupka asked whether the emergency brake was working, and 17-year-old Alton Claar admitted it was not. So Kupka crawled in to test the car.

Halfway down the hill and going faster every second, Kupka jammed down the brake pedal. Nothing happened.

To one side was a sharp curve and a steep embankment. To the other was the building of the City Ice and Fuel Co. Kupka chose the building.

After the crash there were no injuries, a little damage to the building and considerable damage to the car.

Claar was cited to appear in juvenile court on grounds that his car was completely without brakes, had no reverse gear, no first gear and no muffler.

He, in turn, presented city council today with a bill for $201 damages to his car.

Social Security Office Issues New Reminder

"If you are one of the more than 1,000 persons in Pickaway County receiving monthly old-age and survivors insurance payments, you need to know about the change in the law effective January 1 regarding the amount you can earn and still get social security payments," declares C. C. Darby, manager of the Columbus district office of the Social Security Administration.

Darby points out that beginning the first of the year you can earn as much as $1,200 in a year and still accept your benefit check for each month of the year. If you earn more than $1,200 a year, from any type of work whether or not covered by social security, benefits for some months of that year are not payable.

After you are 72 years of age, you may accept the benefit check for each month regardless of the amount of your earnings. If you expect to earn more than $1,200 in 1955, or in the taxable year beginning in 1955, you should notify the Social Security Administration. A post card form for you to use in sending in such notice will be mailed before the end of 1954 to everyone now receiving benefits.

Your benefits will be stopped while you are working and payments started again when you have stopped working. If you are not sure whether you should make a report, or if you need more information, get in touch with your social security district office located in the Old Post Office Building, Columbus.

A representative is at the Circleville Post Office the second and fourth Tuesday of the month, during the morning.

Christmas Memories

A T LEAST three of the most popular Christmas carols — It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, We Three Kings of Orient Are and O Little Town of Bethlehem — are of American origin. Phillips Brooks wrote the words of the latter while clerk of Holy Trinity church, Philadelphia. A Christmas visit of his to Palestine in 1865 made an indelible impression and the verses came to his mind as he was preparing a Christmas program for the church school in 1868. The church organist, Louis Redner, whom he asked to provide a simple musical accompaniment for them, said that a week passed without his being able to think of a suitable air. Then he was awakened from a deep sleep by a melody he seemed to hear. He got up immediately to put the notes on paper: they are the air with which O Little Town of Bethlehem became a Christmas favorite.

*O little town of Bethlehem,
How still we see thee lie!
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by;
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee to-night.*

*For Christ is born of Mary,
And, gathered all above,
While mortals sleep, the angels keep
Their watch of wondering love.
O morning stars, together
Proclaim the holy birth!
And praises sing to God the King,
And peace to men on earth.*

*How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.
No ear may hear His coming,
But in this world of sin,
Where meek souls will receive Him still
The dear Christ enters in.*

*O holy Child of Bethlehem!
Descend to us, we pray;
Cast out our sin, and enter in,
Be born in us today.
We hear the Christmas angels
The great glad tidings tell;
Oh, come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord Emmanuel!*

Phillips Brooks also wrote the poem, Everywhere, Everywhere, Christmas Tonight!

Giants, Indians Dominate 1954 All-Star Baseball '9'

NEW YORK (AP)—Befitting their stations, New York's World Champion Giants and Cleveland's American League Champion Indians dominated the 1954 Associated Press major league all-star team, capturing six of the 10 positions.

Six of the 16 big league clubs, four in the National, were represented in the AP's ninth annual all-star squad selected by 422 baseball writers and broadcasters throughout the nation. The National League had six players to four for the American.

The all-star team (Batting averages in parentheses): First base — Ted Kluszewski, Reds (.326). Second base — Bobby Avila, Indians (.341). Third base — Al Rosen, Indians (.293). Shortstop — Alvin Dark, Giants (.293).

Only three players are holdovers from the 1953 team. They are Rosen, Musial and Snider. Musial made the team for the eighth time, missing only once since the poll was inaugurated in 1946.

Mays, the brilliant Giant outfielder who led both majors in batting with a .345 average, topped all vote getters. The Negro flash was named on 397 ballots. Musial had 340 votes to easily join Mays in the outfield. Snider had tough competition from Boston's Ted Williams before finally sneaking into the third garden spot, 195 votes to Ted's 153.

The second biggest vote-getter was Berra, who won the catching position hands down with 389 votes. Runner-up Roy Campanella of the Dodgers drew only nine votes to seven for Cleveland's Jim Hegan and five for Milwaukee's Del Crandall. Last year Campanella had 174 votes to only five for Berra.

Chemical Kills Marietta Worker

MARIETTA (AP)—Clouds of phenol spurting from a pipe yesterday fatally burned one man and injured two others at the Bakelite Division of the Union Carbide Co.

Dead is Robert G. Evans, 23, of Vienna, W. Va. Injured were Kenneth Morgan, 43, Marietta; Gene Singleton, 29, Parkersburg.

Plant Supt. J. L. Brannon said the phenol, a liquid chemical that burns the skin on contact, spurting from a pipe while the three men were transferring the chemical from a tank to a drum.

U.S. General Irks Kremlin Chiefs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has formally protested remarks attributed to an American Air Force General in England. He was quoted last week as saying his unit is capable of "an atomic punch which will give the Russians cause for consideration."

The officer involved, Brig. Gen. John D. Stevenson, said in England he had heard nothing of the protest until a reporter telephoned.

"Obviously I can make no comment," Stevenson said. "It obviously will be dealt with at a much higher level."

Otto Graham Nears End Of Great Career

Retirement-Bound Star Can Chalk Up Records In Next 2 Lion Games

CLEVELAND (AP)—If Otto Graham goes through with his rumored retirement, he's about to wind up one of professional football's most fabulous careers. "Automatic Otto," the former Northwestern great, has engineered the Cleveland Browns to nine straight divisional titles, four All-America Conference and one National League championships. He gets his chance Dec. 26 against Detroit's Lions to make it two National titles.

Usually, when professional forward pass records are discussed, you are talking about Sammy Baugh, the former Washington Redskins who rewrote the book at the overhead game. Sammy was a big name pro for 16 years. Graham, who tells friends "I plan to make this my last year of football, but—" is in his ninth season.

But Otto, although seven years shy of the great Baugh's tenure, can grab one of the Texan's most coveted crowns in the next two games—both against the Lions. By averaging 119 yards through the air for two tilts, Graham can boost his total aerial gains to 22,086 to nose out Baugh by a yard.

For his career, through 123 league games, Graham has averaged 177 yards for a 21,848 total, just 237 back of Baugh's 22,085.

Baugh completed 1,709 of 3,061 passes for a .566 percentage and 187 touchdowns. Graham has connected on 1,365 of 2,435 for a .560 mark and 159 touchdowns. Baugh averaged 1.9 yards per completion, Graham 16.

Of Baugh's 3,061 passes, 205 were intercepted. The foe has picked off 127 of Graham's 2,435.

The statistics prove Graham has been a more effective passer in the National League than he was in his first four years when the Browns dominated the now-defunct All-American loop.

In 59 All-American games, Otto completed 592 of 1,061 passes for 10,085 yards. That is a completion percentage of .557 and an average gain of 171 yards.

In 64 National League games, he's completed 773 of 1,374 for 11,763 yards. That's a completion percentage of .562 and an average gain of 183—both better than his All-American performances.

Graham said before last season he might retire, but came back for the best of his years. He said it again before the current campaign, but donned his uniform to lead the loop's passers in percentage of completions with 608.

Coach Paul E. Brown said Graham has never discussed retirement with him, and that Otto would be his quarterback until he decided to quit. The pass master is getting a salary in the $20,000-plus bracket from the Browns, but has a flock of lucrative sidelines.

He's in the insurance business, a gift package concern stockholder and salesman, and with Cleveland Indian catcher Jim Hegan owns an industrial sales company. Graham owns his own home in suburban Bay Village, and for a guy who became 33 years old only last week, is considered a comfortably wealthy man. He's married and has three children.

Harness Racing Chalks Gain In Attendance And Betting

COLUMBUS (AP)—Harness racing registered gains in both attendance and wagering in 1954, the U. S. Trotting Association reported today. The increases were slight in both categories but they maintained the sport's record of increased national interest in every postwar year.

The big 1954 winners were the states which permit parimutuel wagering on harness racing. Their revenue, aided by a big rise in New York, was up 23 per cent from $25,824,182 to $31,767,467.

Attendance rose from 10,021,578 to 10,552,786 and wagering was up from $443,637,912 to $444,845,200. Attendance figures are for mutual tracks only and do not include a conservatively estimated nine million fans who watched harness racing at state and county fairs.

In a season in which no national pattern developed, attendance and wagering climbed in such scattered states as California, Illinois, Delaware and New Jersey and Ohio.

The attendance at parimutuel tracks in Ohio in 1953 totaled 590-213 compared to 567,398 in 1954. There were, however, eight less racing days in 1954 than in the year before.

Ohio's total wager handle in 1953 was $15,564,268 while the total this year was $14,602,438. The state treasury picked up $658,438 in 1953 and $601,577.

Yuletide's Meaning Topic Of Sermon For Calvary EUB

A unified service of worship will be conducted Sunday morning at 9 a. m. in the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church. The entire church, including the children's department will worship together during this service.

The Rev. James B. Recob, pastor of Calvary Church, has announced his topic for Christmas Sunday to be "The Meaning of Christmas". He will point out that while Christmas means many different things to many different people, the day is truly a Christian "holi-day" only when it is observed as the anniversary of the birth of the Savior, Jesus Christ.

The order of worship will be directed by the Rev. Mr. Recob Sunday morning. He will be assisted by Dale De Long. Miss Minnie Wilkerson, church pianist, will play for the prelude, "O Holy Night", by Adams, arranged by Hess. Her offertory selection will be, "My Christmas Prayer", by Martin.

At the conclusion of the worship service the Christmas story will be discussed in the church's Sunday school classes. The general theme of the morning's lesson is, "Glory To God in the Highest". A sound movie film, "Child of Bethlehem" will be shown to the children's department during the Sunday school hour.

Both men and women of ancient Egypt often put a lump of scented unguent on their heads to wear at festivals.

CHRISTMAS CAROL

They are not wise, these three small men. They are simple in the way of children. They bear little semblance to the three Princes who came to Christ's manger to pay homage... save that they, too, bear gifts, offering them with a song, a Christmas carol upon their lips.

Behind them stands the Church, the home of Christ, the house that welcomes those who would visit Him. These youngsters are among His regular visitors, and for them Christmas has a very special meaning.

Though they will have a tree trimmed with shining ornaments, brightly wrapped packages, fun and laughter, they will be deeply conscious of the true meaning of this glorious season. Through their church they have learned the wonders of God's love—which endures not just at Christmas but throughout every day of every year.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

LATTER-DAY "ALICE"

LABORITE LEADER Clem Attlee has unburdened himself of a spate of specious logic which proves how blind the starry-eyed can be to the bright light of reason. Recently returned from his "see no evil" pilgrimage to Red China, good ol' Clem can now see no reason for the Allies to postpone a big four conference with the Soviets until their hard-won Western alliance has been ratified.

Such parliamentary action will not give them anything more than "potential strength" anyway, he notes, so why the delay?

In a speech to the House of Commons that should qualify Attlee as the latter-day Lewis Carroll of the political wonderland, the former British prime minister asserts that the Western powers, by simply declaring their will to get together, have already accomplished their purpose.

Furthermore, Clem adds, it will take at least two years for that potential strength to become an actuality, which is all the more reason for not waiting for ratification.

"Alice" Attlee's fuzzy arguments could not be more obvious if the reds had advanced them themselves. The Soviets have fought doggedly to deter an effective European defense alliance complete with German participation. Now that such an alliance is closer to reality than ever, the Soviets are beside themselves trying to stave it off.

But Clem Attlee, talking in circles in London, is not likely to be of great help.

POLICY CHANGE?

WHETHER A DIRECTIVE by Defense Secretary Wilson cautioning procurement officers to avoid concentrating defense orders in the hands of a few contractors is a sharp reversal of recent policy is not entirely clear, but it appears to be so despite official denials.

The previous policy of so dispersing defense orders as to maintain a broad base for industrial mobilization in an emergency was a road block in Mr. Wilson's course of paring the defense budget. The costly inefficiency of the plan irked the defense secretary.

Wilson has been criticized by leftwingers for not regarding defense procurement as a make-work program for purposes of employment relief. He has also been accused of favoring large firms in the awarding of contracts, but nearly all of the contracts involved in such criticism were awarded under the Truman administration.

In any event, the present policy of the Defense Department is to award contracts without favoritism to big suppliers, but not to favor small bidders if such action would be clearly out of line price-wise. Whether this is a reversal or a continuance of former policy depends on who is explaining the setup at the moment.

These Days

Apparently there are limitless funds for all sorts of efforts to flood the country with one side of the problems that face us. There is the A.D.A. (Americans for Democratic Action), the National Committee for an Effective Congress which collects money for Congressional campaigns and passes it on to favorites of both parties, thus breaking down the two-party system.

Now along comes the "National Issues Committee," "a non-partisan, non-profit educational association," headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman. The Board members are the usual names, with a new one here and there, the same names that one finds on so many committees.

This committee puts out a Washington newsletter, which is a euphemism for a great many propaganda sheets. The object of the newsletter is 'you can help get the facts around.' So I looked at the first issue that came to hand which contained this item:

"Denver: The Post (for Eisenhower in 1952) has completed a national survey of what it calls 'applied mccarthyism' in the schools. Among its extensive findings: Local FBI agents in Utah, Ohio, Colorado, California, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania have been volunteering derogatory information about school teachers to state officials.

"School teachers all across the country," says The Post, 'are operating under the all-seeing eyes of the FBI.'

It would be of great value if "The Issue," as the newsletter is called, would provide some evidence of the "applied mccarthyism" of the FBI. It would also be of value if "applied mccarthyism" were defined and the relationship of it to the FBI were made clear. The 'm' beginning the word, 'mccarthyism,' is spelled with a small letter which may be clever but is not grammatical no matter who does it.

Furthermore, what is the derogatory information that the FBI is supplying to state officials and is this supply voluntary or is it being requested to safeguard the schools from Communists, subversives and spies?

I have here quoted the item in full. There is nothing more to it. Perhaps if you want more evidence, or a better explanation, you can write the Denver 'Post' and get it from them. Perhaps they will send you their survey. It looks funny to me because if the FBI undertook to watch, screen, check and report on every school teacher in the United States, it would have to have a staff five or six times larger than has been provided by the Budget.

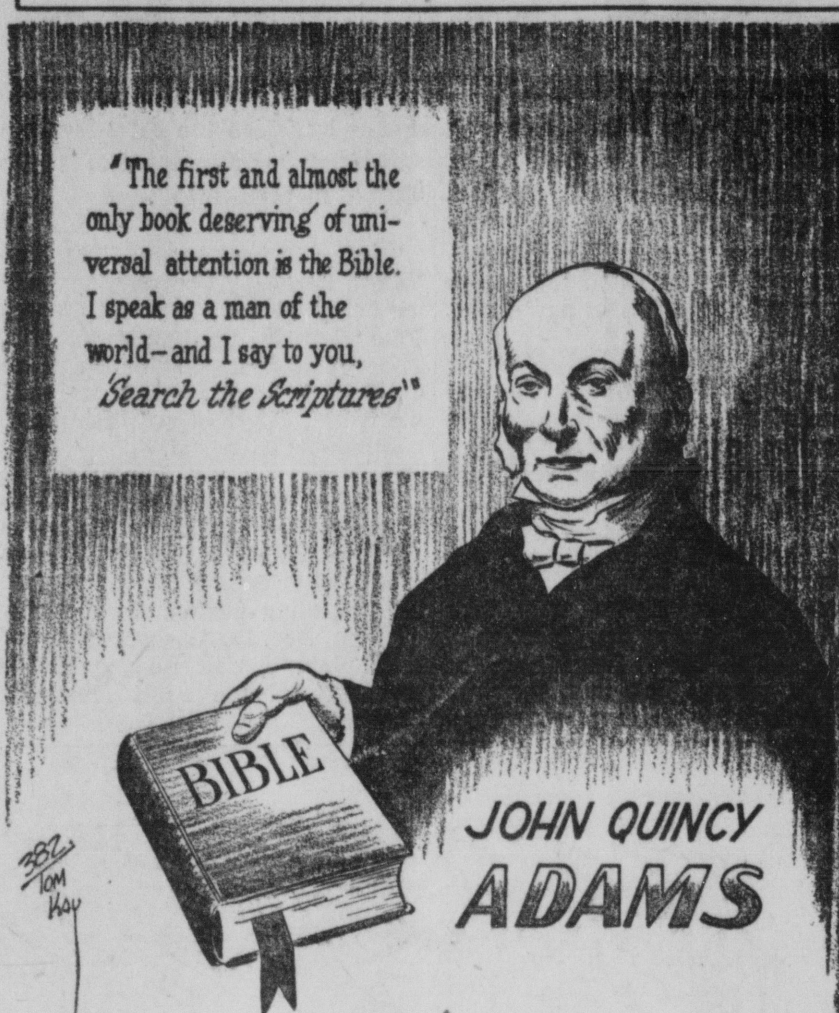

Who is trying to scare school teachers? Most of them—the vast majority of them—are loyal Americans with no subversive or Communist affiliations. That would be true of Americans in any walk of life. For what reason is this scare pitched into the teaching profession? Is it because a small number of Communists have been caught by several Congressional committees who have had or have now Communist affiliations? Is somebody trying to start a movement to hamstring the FBI so that it will not be able to do the work which Congress has set for it?

Operation for Ulcer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MEDICAL care and strict adherence to a special diet are usually enough to calm an ulcer. But sometimes they aren't.

That means you'll need an operation, and several types of surgery can be performed to get rid of the ulcer.

In a gastric resection, a segment of the stomach is removed, particularly the portion of the stomach where ulcers tend to form. From one-third to two-thirds of the stomach may be taken out.

Acid Secretions

The surgeon also attaches the second part of the small part of the small bowel, known as the jejunum, to the stomach. This prevents the acid secretions of the stomach from reaching the first part of the intestine, or duodenum, where ulcers also tend to develop.

Following such an operation, food is not retained long in the remaining section of the stomach, but passed quickly into the small bowel.

Schedule Your Meals

Consequently, if you undergo a gastric resection, you must eat smaller meals at more frequent intervals. Your stomach, naturally, can't hold as much when its capacity has been reduced by from one to two-thirds. You should probably follow the diet I outlined for you Wednesday.

In another surgical procedure, gastro-enterostomy, the duodenum is also "short-circuited" by connecting the upper portion of the stomach to the jejunum.

Another Method

There's another method, too, of relieving you of an ulcer. In this, the ulcer is simply cut out and the openings sewed up. But this is only a temporary measure, since the area where the ulcers usually form is left in the stomach.

So, you see, one way or another, you can usually get rid of a troublesome ulcer.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

W. M. C.: I am a diabetic and have been eating rolled oats for some time. Is the oatmeal too warming to the blood?

Answer: There is no such thing as a food being warming to the blood. However, if you are suffering from diabetes, foods rich in carbohydrates, such as oatmeal, should not be eaten in large amounts.

Your physician will plan your diet for you, in order to control the diabetic condition.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

CINDY was light of heart once more; the loneliness, the homesickness she had admitted to Gary Norbeck that morning at the pool had vanished. She had not had to keep her "flags flying" for, for these past several days, SHE, the aunt she refused to claim as a relative, was staying shut in her wing when she was not driving away somewhere. And Aunt Jennie, who before had been the one to shut herself in, now came frequently out into the yard. Aunt Jennie left the door between her part of the house and the kitchen wing open, day and night. Aunt Jennie brought food to her which she needed, for her stock was running low, her money, too.

Cindy made her first stew out of beef from a can and carrots and small onions from her garden. Proud of her effort, she invited Aunt Jennie to share it. While they were eating, Aunt Jennie asked her about her father, though not in a prying way. And Cindy told of the wonderful times she always had when her father came to Covington. Telling about them brought those good times and her father close to her.

"I'm sure he'll be here before the summer's over. Dan said he'd come. He'll come unexpectedly—the way he's always come to Dan's and Brigit's. He had a key and he'd just open the door and walk in."

"I'll be glad to see him," Aunt Jennie said. "I haven't, for a long time." And Cindy was ready to accept this aunt, for saying that.

Two days ago Aunt Jennie had asked, "I've some marketing to do in the village. Would you like to walk down with me?"

"Oh, yes, I'd love to!"

It was something different to do. And Cindy liked the way Aunt Jennie introduced her to the woman at the post-office and to the man at the bank. "My brother's daughter." Then they stopped at Mr. Middleton's house. "I want Mr. Middleton's cousin to meet you." The cousin Nettie and Aunt Jennie seemed to be good friends, though now that had come about Cindy could not understand. The cousin pressed a box of cookies on her to bring back with her. The cookies were very good.

But it was swimming at the pool which contributed mostly to her light-heartedness. With Gary Norbeck there every morning and Enid not there some of the times. On one of these mornings she went with Gary to his cabin to see his last painting of her. She had liked this one. She went back in the afternoon of that day and he painted her again, sitting on his doorstep. She did not care now that he did not talk while he worked; she liked the way he looked at her over the top of the canvas, a seeing way, that made a queer warm thrill go through her.

"Mind, I believe I am falling in love."

Enid drove frequently after supper to a farm a few miles up the road for milk and butter and eggs, and this evening Cindy had gone with her. She had to talk about Gary...

"With Gary Norbeck." Enid did not make it a question, nor did she give any sign of excitement. Cindy considered such a confidence should arouse.

"Who else up here? He's a lot older but I like him more for that and it makes it—sort of serious!"

"Is he falling in love with you?" A bluntness in Enid's question made it almost a demand to know. As if a girl could know right at first, at least for certain! It showed that Enid knew nothing of the thrilling stages of falling in love! Cindy answered, a little loftily, "Well, he looks at me sometimes, as if he were!"

Now, whenever she saw Hester drive out of the yard she let Nip and Tuck outside to play. They liked best to play in the barn, and from her back window she could see them if they came out into the yard. Often she sat in the barn door while, inside, they snifled in cobwebby corners, and chased each other in and out of the empty stalls.

But this afternoon, after she let the cats out, she put water over her stove to heat for some washing. Everyone was gone. She had seen Aunt Jennie walk down the road an hour earlier. A few minutes ago Hester had gone out to her car, started it, then stopped, gone back into her wing, and Enid had come out with her and got in behind the wheel, looking unwilling, Cindy thought, peeping at them through her window.

She sang happily as she rubbed and rinsed, and again as she hung out her wash. Gary had not come to the pool this morning, but there was tomorrow... Maybe, tomorrow, he'd want to do another painting of her.

Later, mindful that Hester might return any minute, she went out to the barn to corral her cats. They were nowhere in sight but she heard the crackle of dry old hay in the loft and climbed up the ladder. The cats were in a corner, jumping into the hay, tossing it up, rolling in it. Cindy joined them in their play, picking up handfuls of the hay and burying them under it.

Then her hand slipped between the planks, touched something hard. A small tin box. She lifted it out curiously. It was exciting to find it. The cats, tiring of their game, were rubbing against her ankles. "Let's go down," she said to them. She went down the ladder, a little shiver running through her fingers from the clammy feeling of the box in her hand! The cats scrambled down after her.

The big car came into the yard just a moment or so after she closed her door behind herself and the cats. She waited until she saw Enid and Hester go into their door. Then she opened the box.

Money. She gave a gasp of surprise. Bills—the box was packed with them. Some $20 bills lay on the top. She drew back from the table. It must belong to the old man who'd lived here, and he was dead.

Alarm struck her. Hester might come in—she might accuse her of stealing it! She closed the box, carried it to the old chest, opened the drawer that held her father's uncle's clothes and hid the box under them. She would leave it there until her father came.

Jennie Todd always had taken her early walks along the road. But one day she went into the fields. She liked the feeling of the rough grass under her step, the smell of it. She sat down on the ground under a tree. "Tomorrow I'll bring a book over here with me!"

She was aware of a feeling of competency which she never had felt before. Of thinking without the old confusion which so often had troubled it. She thought as she sat under the tree: "I'm staying here, but I've got to have something to live on! My savings won't last very long." And she dwelt on the problem quite practically. Boarders? Her wing would not accommodate any. A bookshop in town, or a lending library? "There wouldn't be enough income to make a living out of it."

Then suddenly she remembered what the postmistress had said about being tired of her job. She knew such appointments were made in Washington—but were they for a small town like Killbuck? She thought: "I'd like it. Having people come in, giving them their mail. Talking to them the way that woman talked to me. Like a friend... I'll ask Wick Middleton about it!"

The next day she walked down to the town. She went to Wick Middleton's office.

She went at once into the matter that had brought her here. "I've resigned from that school—I have to do something to earn some money. I thought..." With the warm interest that came into his face he did not seem fantastic to tell him what the postmistress had said to her and suggest that perhaps she could get the appointment.

"You really want to stay there on the farm?" he asked.

Jennie flushed, laughed. "It is a new experience for me—to make a different life for myself, even to think about it! To be—not afraid to think!"

"Good," said Wick Middleton.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind

the news

By Ray Tucker

Editor's Note: Every Saturday, Mr. Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Maryland.

WASHINGTON — An historically minded reader in Sturgis, Mich., suggests that it is time to destroy the political legend that it was Senate Republicans who wrecked Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations, the model for the Roosevelt-Churchill United Nations.

The suggestion is currently timely because of the Democrats' contention that they have given, and probably will give, greater support to President Eisenhower's broad foreign policy than members of his own party on Capitol Hill.

The opposition, of course, is jilting at the Knowland-McCarthy break with the White House, and its effect on Ike's collective security pacts in the session opening on January 5, 1955.

LEAGUE VOTE—I have verified the Sturgis correspondent's report from a reading of newspaper accounts of the League of Nations controversy at the Congressional Library. It is true that more Democrats voted against ratification of the League Covenant than those who voted in favor of the so-called "parliament of man."

The final vote was taken on March 19, 1920. The tally was 49 in favor and 35 against. Twenty-eight Republicans and twenty-one Democrats voted in the affirmative. In opposition there were twelve Republicans and twenty-three Democrats. Thus, numerically, the Democrats provided the votes to kill both the German Peace Treaty and the League Covenant.

But there is a catch in this historical controversy is presented to the Senate, the Treaty and the League Covenant contained the so-called "Lodge Reservations," framed by the uncle of the man who now represents the United States before the United Nations.

The late Senator Lodge argued that his reservations safeguarded vital U. S. interests. Wilson insisted that they gutted the League structure, and would break "the great heart of mankind."

So the Democrats were voting against Lodge, not against the League.

"Kindly tell us the story of the Roosevelt Museum at Hyde Park, N. Y.," writes W. F. I. of Rye, N. Y. "Do the taxpayers support it? Who is in charge of it, and is it self-supporting? We hear that somebody is compiling the Roosevelt history at this museum. If so, is this at the taxpayers' expense?"

Answer: For a family which capitalized so handsomely on the White House—I am thinking of James' insurance deals, Elliott's borrowings and Anna's unsuccessful newspaper ventures—the gift of F.D.R.'s home and library to the federal government was a generous act.

FULL TITLE—In 1939, pursuant to a joint congressional resolution, the estate was designated as a national historic site as of

Jan. 15, 1944, with the family retaining a life interest in the home and in 33.23 acres. Upon the death of F.D.R., Mrs. Roosevelt and her children waived their life interests, and full title to the area was accepted by the Secretary of the Interior on November 21, 1945.

Congress appropriates money for the annual upkeep. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954, the amount was $93,725 for the home, and $57,200 for the library. But the receipts from paid admissions to the home and the library almost offset these federal contributions. The income from visitors to the home alone in 1953 totaled $42,679, and payments for inspecting the library were only slightly smaller. In 1953, 304,353 people visited the place.

The state of New York and the village of Hyde Park, of course, lose the taxes which Mrs. Roosevelt would have had to pay, if she had not released the property to Uncle Sam. Any responsible historian may use the library papers to compile a Roosevelt history, but at his own expense.

Holiday Stains Can Be Removed From Tablecloth

Many a hostess groans to discover that her best table linen bears the mark of cranberry sauce, gravy or other food.

However, the cloth is washable and practically any stain will come off if quick action is taken.

Meat juice stains require soaking in cold water. Then sponge off in warm soapsuds. Sponge gravy spots with cold or tepid water, then wash in lukewarm suds. Never use hot water, since hot water sets the stain.

If the stain is from cranberries, stretch the spot over a bowl and hold it securely with a rubber band or string. Then pour boiling water on it from a height of two or three feet.

Wash thoroughly in soap and water. If the sun won't injure the fabric, hang it in the sun to dry. Dinner beverages that overflow can be sponged with warm water and soap, and cream sauces yield to the same simple treatment.

Salad oils respond to simple soap and water laundering, with a little extra rubbing for good measure. Treat butter stains the same way.

The dessert is one course that is extremely apt to make its mark on the banquet cloth, especially if there's the happy combination of large ice cream portions and small guests. It's wise to give them the two-step treatment. First, sponge with cool or lukewarm water to remove the sugar and the protein. Next, wash in warm suds to remove the residue.

Treat tea and coffee stains as you would cranberry stains.

For milk spots, soak first in cold or lukewarm water, and follow with a soap and warm water washing. Use soap and water to handle lipstick stains, candle drip smears and stains from fresh flowers.

Christmas Cheer Found In Cotton Feed Bag Gifts

For many folks, Christmas cheer will come in cotton bags this year. The National Cotton Council reports that gifts can be made and easily and inexpensively from the colorful containers of feed, flour, and fertilizer.

The empty bags are used the year round for home sewing by thousands of imaginative, budget-minded women. They are available in bright prints, cambric sheetings, linen-like osnaburgs, and even flannel. Pretty and practical gifts made from these fabrics are sure to delight the family and friends.

Stuffed animals and toys are perennial favorites with the younger set. The Council suggests a life-sized "bag" doll as a new and thrilling gift for a little girl. Osnaburg bag fabric dyed stockings that Santa can fill to overflowing. The stockings can be decorated with a snow man, Christmas trees, and other holiday symbols made from print bag scraps.

Mannish looking plaids and checks, in both subdued and gay colors, are plentiful among cotton bags this year. These prints are appropriate for ties, lounging robes, sports shirts, and shorts for the men and boys.

Gifts such as pillow cases, table cloths, napkins, aprons, and tea towels come ready-made in the bag. A specially-designed 100-lb. feed container rips into a luncheon cloth and four napkins ready to use, except for hemming. No sewing is necessary to convert some 25-lb. flour and 50-lb. feed sacks into pillow cases. The trick can be accomplished by ripping the chain-stitched seams, removing the labels, and laundering the material.

Preparing other cotton bags for sewing is a simple process, the Council says. Chain-stitched seams rip out in a jiffy when corner threads are clipped. Band labels, or trade names printed in washout inks, come off easily when the containers are soaked in water.

Schedule Home Activities To Eliminate Rush

Got everything set for the holidays? If you have you are an exception. Bet you forgot to order the wreaths or check the stove or your Christmas lights. There is so much to do that unless you get an early start the last hours are pretty hectic. If you think it is too early to become annoyed by the "little things" why not make a checklist in your spare time. Keep it hanging in a prominent spot and perhaps you will do things as you come to them. At least it will serve as a reminder that there is plenty to be done. Here are some suggestions:

1. Is the family coming? Or have you invited dear friends? If so you will need to get that guest room or other sleeping area ready. Curtains should be washed and starched if necessary. Bedspreads and blankets should be soil-checked. See that bulbs are in order and a few books are on the night-chest. Do you have enough linens and blankets?

2. Check the stove. You do not want a last minute breakdown or a fallen cake. Let your husband check the oven against tilt with his carpenter's level. Or fill a pan with water to test the degree of tilt. A few wedges will level the stove and insure even baking.

Clean your stove thoroughly. New oven cleaners make this an easy job. Spread some newspapers in the stove, applying oven cleaner with the brush attached to the lid—to oven lining, broiler pans, racks and shelves. Wear rubber gloves. Let cleaner stand for two hours and then rinse off with a little water and vinegar.

3. Are your table supplies ready? Do you have the right amount of china, glassware, flatware? If not there is still time perhaps to add to your regular patterns or fill in the void with borrowed pieces.

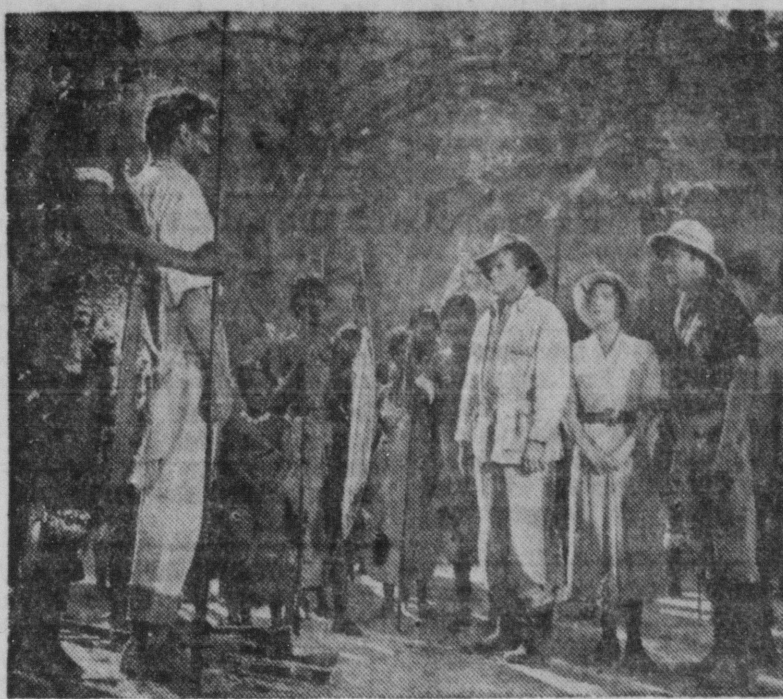

4. Plan a centerpiece so you will not be scrounging around at the last minute looking for something to help dress the table. Candles are inexpensive and indispensable to table cheer. Plan a large bowl filled with nuts, oranges, apples and a cascade of grapes. Stick into it a few sprigs of broom corn, heather, dried Hawaiian flowers, slim tapers.

5. Check your table linens. There is still time to replace worn table cloths and napkins. Shine the silver—hollowware and flatware.

6. Get out the wooden salad bowls and trays. Apply ordinary household petroleum jelly to them, rubbing well into the wood and polish to an even luster. If the outside of the bowl has become gummy from oil and dust wash it with soap and water and rub lightly with sandpaper before applying the jelly.

7. This is the time to write the menu, organize your shopping list.

8. Windows take time to clean. Get an early start. Ditto cleaning and waxing furniture. Spruce up upholstery with one of the new quick cleaners.

VAN HEFLIN, HOWARD DUFF and RUTH ROMAN are shown above in a tense moment in the land of the hunter and hunted. It is a scene from "Tanganyika", which starts Sunday at the Grand Theater.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Curl of 143 E. Town St. were hosts to the annual Christmas party of the Circleville Garden Club.

Twenty-five members and thirteen guests were present for the event, which opened with a turkey dinner served from a table decorated in keeping with a holiday theme.

Mrs. Earl Smith and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Stucker were welcomed into the group as new members.

Program, which followed the dinner, included a Christmas poem by Mrs. E. E. Wolfe, a story of the Christmas Rose by Mrs. Anna Ritt, and carol singing by the assembled group. Mrs. Marcella Kern accompanied the group at the piano.

Mrs. Donald Watt and Mrs. Marcella Kern were winners in a gift wrapping contest, which was participated in by all members of the club.

Guests at the event were: Mr. and Mrs. Stucker, Miss Carol Kern, Harry Kern, Miss Faye Leasure, Miss Nancy Curl, Miss Linda Curl, Alex Cook, Leo Moats, Miss Sue Moats, Mrs. Earl Smith, George Welker and Roy Wood.

Ashville Garden Club Has Annual Christmas Tea

The members of the Ashville Garden club held an annual Christmas meeting and tea in the home of the Misses Kathryn and Frances Decker near Ashville. The rooms were decorated for the occasion in keeping with a holiday theme.

During a business session, roll call was answered by 33 members. Five guests were welcomed to the session. The Christmas project committee reported that two collegiate dictionaries had been purchased as a gift to the Pickaway County Children's Home.

A report was given on plans for decorating and lighting the Ashville community Christmas tree. This Norway Spruce has been decorated each year since it was planted in 1938 by the garden club. William Fischer is in charge of decorations again this year.

Following the business session, Mrs. Kathryn Decker, program chairman, presented Mrs. Russell Hedges, who gave a reading, "The Legend of the Poinsettia". Miss Jane Marion of Groveport sang several numbers, playing her own accompaniment on an auto-harp. Group singing of Christmas carols concluded the program for the event.

The hostesses, assisted by their sister, Mrs. James Fagin, distributed packages for a gift exchange among the members.

Mrs. Link Brown and Mrs. G. D. McDowell presided at a tea table, which was decorated in Christmas symbols. Hospitality committee members for the tea were: Mrs. Warren Bastian, Mrs. Chester Rockey, Mrs. Joseph Peters and Mrs. Harold Hines.

A January meeting of the club will be held in the home of Mrs. Ethel Valentine.

Surprise Party Marks Birthday

A group of friends gathered in the home of Mrs. Orville Baker of Walnut Township to surprise her on her birthday anniversary.

Games and contests provided entertainment during the evening and Mrs. Baker was presented a potted plant by her guests. Refreshments in keeping with the theme of the event were served at the close of the evening.

The Rev. and Mrs. Orville Gibbs were hosts to a Christmas party of the Shining Light Bible Class of the First Evangelical United Brethren church in their home on E. Main St.

The session opened with musical selections, played by Mrs. James Pierce at the piano. Mrs. Ernest May was in charge of the business session, which opened with Mrs. C. O. Kerns presenting the Christmas Story from Scriptures, according to St. Luke.

Following prayer, led by the Rev. Mr. Gibbs, the group enjoyed a carry-in dinner. Decorations in the home and on the tables were in keeping with the Christmas theme. A total of 35 members and guests were present for the event, which was highlighted by a gift exchange.

Gifts were presented to Mrs. Carlos Brown and Mrs. Myrtle Trimmer, class teachers, by the members of the group. Mrs. Cora Coffland was in charge of program for the event. Mrs. Ernest Long, Mrs. Maggie Morris, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Harley Noggle, Mrs. Mabel Estep and Mrs. J. E. Millions presented the various numbers.

Is There ONE BEST TIME To Buy a Memorial?

Yes, when all the family is around to take part in this important decision. Today the common-sense of pre-need memorial buying is accepted and acted upon all over the country... people are erecting beautiful family memorials before a single piece of ground is actually needed for burial.

You, too, might consider the wisdom of this way of buying a memorial. Visit our display lot across from Forest Cemetery.

WCH Defeats Tigers 75-51 In SCOL Game Friday Night

Stepping on the gas in the second period and breaking the game wide open in the third quarter, the Blue Lions of Washington C. H. clawed their way to a resounding 75 to 51 victory over Circleville's Tigers.

WCH brought along their version of two platoon basketball. The starting five of Whitely, Meyer, Pensyl, Martin and Dunton were relieved by Belles, Crosswhite, Lee, Swaim and Dunton. On occasion, Martin would stay in for both platoons.

CHS was again at a height disadvantage as they suffered their fifth straight loss and their first in South Central Ohio League play. But the Tigers had the enthusiastic crowd tinged with excitement all the way.

The Tigers had a 21 to 14 lead in the second period before WCH was able to sink a goal that put them on the winning path. The break came with 5:19 minutes remaining. Jim McConnell dumped two foul shots through the hoop to give CHS a 25 to 16 edge.

HOWEVER, for the next three minutes, the Tigers were held scoreless while WCH was able to pile up 10 points and go ahead on a two-pointer by Lee.

Although Bobby Callihan knotted the count with a charity toss, the Blue Lions countered with a field goal by Dunton and were never headed after that.

Sporting a 34-29 lead at the half, WCH opened up full throttle in the third period. They increased their lead to 50-41 as the buzzer sounded for the final frame.

It took CHS more than two minutes to get their first point in the fourth quarter while WCH tallied seven in the same length of time. With less than two minutes to play, the Blue Lions had opened up a 22-point gap, leading 70 to 48. Lee and Swaim fouled out in the final quarter for WCH with 16 fouls called against CHS and 22 against the Blue Lions. WCH made good, unofficially, on 63 per cent of their field goal attempts; approximately 30 per cent for CHS. The Blue Lions only missed six foul shot attempts out of 27 while the Tigers made 21 out of 36 tries.

IN THE JUNIOR varsity game, the CHS Kittens romped to a 49-34

decision of WCH. The reserve Blue Lions led for the first two periods. With half the third quarter gone, Mike Hosler dunked in a two-pointer to put the Kittens in the lead which they kept.

One embarrassing situation developed for the Kittens. With one minute gone in the final quarter, both teams lined up for a jump ball. Dick Banks got the tipoff but went the wrong way.

Despite frantic shouts from Coach Dick Boyd, Banks dribbled all alone up to the WCH basket and took a shot. Although he missed, Knixley took the rebound and sank it.

There was a marked increase in the attendance. But there were still quite a few empty seats on the Circleville side.

CHS's last two games have been extremely exciting. A good break and the boys will click. Good moral support from the fans, by a good attendance, could give Coach Red Courtney's lads just the confidence they need.

Next Tuesday, CHS plays host to Columbus Central in an independent contest. Complete box scores follow below.

Philadelphia Cage Teams Look Strong

Pennsylvania Upsets Mighty Iowa; Temple Due To Meet Kentucky

The Associated Press College football teams in Philadelphia probably had their worst season on record this year, but the alumni can't complain today about the prowess of the Pennsylvania and Temple basketball teams to date.

Pennsylvania, tabbed along with the Princeton and Cornell as the three schools to fight it out for the Ivy League title, staged a big upset last night at Philadelphia by knocking off Iowa 87-75. Iowa had been beaten only by Missouri in five games, and is being touted to take over from Indiana this year as kingpin of the Big Ten.

Iowa led at halftime 38-35 as Bill Logan sparked the attack, but the Quakers unlimbered their big guns in a blistering second half drive. Joe Sturgis got 33 points, Lou Bayne 23 and Bart Leach 21 for Penn, now unbeaten in five games. Iowa was rated 13th nationally this week.

Tonight Iowa meets Princeton, in one of several big games on the college court program that includes a New York Garden meeting between two unbeaten giants, LaSalle and Utah, and a battle at Lexington, Ky., between Kentucky and Temple. Temple (5-1) handed St. John's (Brooklyn) its first defeat Thursday.

In fact, eight of the top 10 in this week's AP poll will see action. In addition to LaSalle (No. 1) and Kentucky (No. 2), Illinois (3) plays Notre Dame, North Carolina State (4) meets Texas Tech, Dayton (5) entertains College of Pacific, UCLA (8) plays San Francisco, and Niagara (10) is at Toledo.

In addition to a heavy schedule of regular games last night, the first two of a score of major Christmas tournaments got under way. West Virginia defeated favored Wake Forest 86-82 and Alabama drubbed Texas 89-54 in the Birmingham (Ala.) classic. The winners meet tonight for the title. Wake Forest's Dick Hemric tallied 43 points in a losing cause.

At Montgomery, Ala., in the Blue-Gray tourney, Tennessee won over Miami (Fla.) 89-80 and Auburn led throughout to clip Washington and Lee 91-81. The winners play tonight in the finals.

Trojans Schedule Stiff Scrimmage

LOS ANGELES (AP)—If Jess Hill's Southern California Trojans get by today's stiff scrimmage session without injury, they may start the New Year's game against Ohio State in fairly good condition.

Hill ordered a full scale scrimmage, during which the varsity will test the attack it has mapped out. Then the regulars will go on the defensive in an attempt to stop the reserves using Buckeye plays.

Fullback Jim Decker definitely won't play against Ohio State. His bad knee will not permit him any action. He has been cut from the Rose Bowl game squad.

100-Point Team Chalks Seventh

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Pleasant City won its seventh game of the basketball season last night by a score of more than 100 points.

The quintet is averaging 109 points per game. Last night it was Pleasant City 103, Old Washington 55.

Buckeyes To Shun Pasadena Welcome

COLUMBUS (AP)—The Ohio State Buckeyes will shun the welcome mat to start immediate practice when they land at Pasadena, Calif., today to prepare for their Rose Bowl game with Southern California.

Visiting delegations to the Rose Bowl for the annual New Year's Day classic usually are greeted with ceremonies at the Huntington Hotel. But Coach Woody Hayes says he will hurry his 44-man squad to a practice field as soon as the plane lands at Los Angeles.

Tampa Is Victor In Cigar Bowl

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—An alert, powerful University of Tampa football team, a 21-0 victor over Morris Harvey last night, is the Cigar Bowl football champion for the second time in three years.

About 6,500 persons saw the game, played annually for the benefit of the Shrine Crippled Children's Hospital.

Baker Seeking Bout Against Valdes

NEW YORK (AP)—Big Bob Baker is a generous soul. He wants to give Nino Valdes a chance to "redeem himself" for the fight he lost to him 16 months ago.

After whipping Coley Wallace for the third time, the hulking Pittsburgh Negro wants to move up in his class.

Baker rates No. 4 among Rock Marciano's contenders. Directly ahead are Nino Valdes, No. 1, Don Cockell, No. 2, and Ezzard Charles, No. 3. Perhaps the order is scrambled in some ratings but that's the usual rotation.

Because he holds a decision over

Valdes May 21, 1953, the Cuban's last defeat, Baker wants him first.

He knows he has little chance of coaxing Cockell over from London because the British heavy reportedly has the inside track to a title match next June.

"I goofed a couple of times when I should have stopped him," said Baker last night after his unanimous decision over Wallace in Madison Square Garden. "He hurt me with a couple of good chops. He tries to kill you with that right."

Wallace was a weary, well-battered man at the finish. For a time, in the fourth round, he seemed on the verge of flooring Baker. From the fifth on, he was no menace, strictly a left jabber trying to go the route.

Ashville Farmers Honored At Meeting Of Shorthorn Groups

ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Young farmers from Ashville came in for a great deal of the enthusiastic applause recently when the Ohio Southern Breeders Association joined with the Ohio Polled Shorthorn Association for the third annual combined banquet held by those organizations.

The banquet was held in Columbus following a business meeting of group.

Vernon Benroth of Willow Farms, Washington C. H., is the new president of that Association. Other officers elected at the group's gathering were: William J. Hoeisier of Sidney, vice president; Betty Royon of Acadia Farms, Northfield secretary; and Mrs. Harry Baxter of Cloverleaf Farms, Tiffin, treasurer.

H. D. Fleming of Vaughnville, was made a new director of the association for a three-year term. Dr. O. W. House of Willow Lee Farms, Washington C. H., was re-elected a director, also to serve through 1957.

Monday, March 7, has been claimed by the association as the date for the 1955 Ohio State Shorthorn Show and Sale, and the Delaware County Fairgrounds at Delaware have again been selected as the site of this annual auction.

After the business meeting, the shorthorn breeders group joined with the polled shorthorn association for the combined banquet.

A featured speaker was A. L. Sorensen, Ohio State Director of Agriculture. The overflow crowd cheered as trophies were awarded by the two associations to several 4-H and FFA boys and girls for winning grand champion ships over all breeds with their Shorthorn steers at their 1954 county fairs.

Among those honored was Paul Teegardin Jr., of Ashville. Loud applause also accompanied the presentation of trophies to Carol Teegardin of Ashville for showing the grand champion Shorthorn female and Clint B. Teegardin of Ashville for showing the grand champion steer in the junior division of the 1954 Ohio State Fair.

Neal Carpenter, Ohio State University agricultural economist, has urged farmers of all ages to get their social security number by January. He appealed especially to farmers 65 years and older to get their records established early to avoid delay in benefit payments.

Carpenter suggested farmers call at their local post office for help in getting a social security return.

All farm operators with a net income of $400 or more are required to file a social security return.

Farmers who will pay $100 or more to any one hired laborer in 1955 must get an employer's identification card. Employers are responsible for withholding two percent of employees' wages and adding 2 percent to it at the end of the year. Employers must list each employee's full name and social security number correctly for employees to get credit for payments.

Over-dried soil samples will not give accurate test results, Jack Dement, director of the Ohio State University soils testing program, warned farmers.

He advised farmers to dry soil samples at room temperature before sending them in for soil tests. If laboratory technicians have to take time to dry samples, they can't operate the laboratory at its capacity. Even if they could, the laboratory isn't big enough to dry all the soil samples in Ohio.

Soil test results from samples sent to the laboratory now will reach farmers in plenty of time for spring planting. The number of samples in the laboratory during winter is lower than at other seasons and farmers will get results faster.

DeMent said soil may be sampled anytime it is dry enough that water doesn't run out of it. Water draining from soil may take plant food with it, thus causing inaccurate tests. Most important, he said, is to have the soil sample dry enough that it can be mixed evenly.

County extension offices have sample bags and mailing instructions for soil samples. Extension agents can also give farmers more information about sampling soil for test and help them interpret test results.

There is still time to mulch strawberries for higher berry yields next year, Vernon Patterson, Ohio State University extension fruit specialist reminded growers. Mulch protects plants from damage caused by alternate freezing and thawing.

Clean straw, sawdust or shavings are good mulch materials, the specialist said. Leaves and other materials tend to pack and smother the plants.

He recommended applying straw 3 to 4 inches deep, or enough sawdust or shavings to cover the plant crowns.

CIO, Pennsy RR Schedule Parley

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A CIO Transport Workers union group will meet next Wednesday with representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad to discuss means of returning thousands of the PRR's furloughed maintenance workers to an active status.

TWU President Michael Quill estimated in a letter to James M. Symes, PRR president, that 10,000 to 12,000 employees who are members of the TWU's Railroad Workers Division are on furlough. Some, Quill said, have had that status for a year. The men were employed in shops in Wilmington, Del.; Altoona, Pa.; Columbus, Ohio; and Terre Haute, Ind.

Blaze Routs 38

CLEVELAND (AP) — Fire left 38 persons homeless yesterday as it swept through a two-and-a-half story frame structure, causing damage estimated by firemen at $12,000. No one was injured.

Escapee Sentenced

CINCINNATI (AP) — An escapee from a Florida prison farm has been sentenced to 20 years in the federal penitentiary for robbing a federal savings and loan association. He is Ronald Lee, 27.

Workers Crushed

MIDDLEPORT (AP) — Walter Clark, 60, of nearby Hobson was crushed to death yesterday when he was caught by a conveyor belt and forced against a steel block. He was working at a coal tipple.

Lausche's Plea On Survey Fund Is Given Chill

'What's Hurry,' GOP Solon Says As Chief Presses Tollroad Bid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. Frank J. Lausche's personal plea may not loosen purse strings immediately to complete a second Ohio turnpike survey.

The governor announced he would attend the next meeting of the state controlling board to urge such action. But legislative members of the board appeared unimpressed.

"What's all the rush?" inquired Sen. Tom V. Moorehead (R-Muskingum) and Rep. J. Frank McClure (R-Ashland). Because they head Senate and House finance committees, both are members of the board that passes on release of state funds.

The legislators indicated they wanted a lot of questions answered to their satisfaction before they would turn loose more than a half million dollars.

S. O. Linzell, Lausche's highway director, said he would request the money to complete a survey of a toll road between Cincinnati and Cincinnati with a Toledo spur. But it requires approval of four members of the five-man board to release funds.

Other members besides Lausche and the legislators are Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill and State Auditor James A. Rhodes. Lausche's opponent in the governor's successful bid for a fifth term. Lausche is the lone Democrat.

State officials usually send representatives to act for them at board meetings. That makes a governor's appearance significant.

Lausche has termed a second turnpike the keystone in Ohio's road building program and the Ohio Turnpike Commission has given its blessing to the 390-mile project.

Linzell, a commission member by virtue of his state post, emphasized that funds advanced for turnpike surveys would be repaid from money received from sale of revenue bonds issued to build the toll road.

The course was followed on the east-west turnpike now under construction for 241 miles across northern Ohio for opening next Oct. 1.

The controlling board last January released $135,000 for a feasibility study of a North-South route after considerable controversy. McClure and Moorehead held back for several months until they got a go signal from fellow legislators at a special highway session of the General Assembly. A newspaper dubbed them the "bottleneck twins."

Both agreed at that time to release funds to complete the North-South survey if the preliminary study demonstrated that a second turnpike was feasible.

Engineers reporting on the preliminary survey said a second turnpike was feasible but expressed concern that revenues from users might be too low to attract bond buyers.

That apparently doomed a second turnpike until Linzell and others reported changes had brightened the picture. The highway director cited "recent lowering of construction costs, an altered time table and other factors which should be used to present a more realistic appraisal."

"The results of the preliminary

It is no secret that an attack on the FBI has long been in the making. It started in the Truman Administration when Max Lowenthal, a New York lawyer, wrote a book which was a violent attack on the FBI, not a studied criticism but a propaganda to break down popular faith in this organization. This was followed by some magazine articles along the same lines.

During the McCarthy-Stevens Hearings an effort was made to drag the FBI and J. Edgar Hoover into the case by constant references to them, the enemies of the FBI hoping that somehow they would be able to prove that FBI files were being given to the McCarthy and other Committees of Congress.

All these efforts flopped because the American people stood by this investigation agency, and the personal popularity of J. Edgar Hoover has not suffered from these attacks.

The FBI, like any other agency which uses taxpayers' money, should be subject to criticism, analysis, scrutiny. No government agency should be sacrosanct. But the type of attack now used is not criticism; it is an effort to give a false impression that the FBI is doing what it has no right to do and therefore is setting itself up as a cultural police force. This is literally untrue.

Germany Studies Paris Accords

BONN, Germany (AP) — The Paris agreements to feed and rear West Germany have gone to Bundestag committees after receiving preliminary approval from the lower house of parliament.

Despite the initial success, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's drive for quick ratification appeared certain to face serious difficulties when the pact returns to the chamber next month for key readings.

Winding up a two-day debate on the first reading the Bundestag agreed without a recorded vote to send the controversial agreements to committees for study.

studies, modified by the changes mentioned, indicate that the turnpike has excellent possibilities of attracting investment capital at reasonable interest rates and that the studies should be continued to the final stage.

McClure and Moorehead said they wanted detailed information on the reasons for Linzell's stand in the face of an apparently adverse survey report. The legislators indicated that his reasons had better be good.

And they said the controlling board has no further meetings planned this year.

But the State Sundry Claims Board, composed of the same members as the controlling board, has four meetings scheduled before the year ends. The board that passes on claims against the state could resolve itself into the controlling board at any time it chose.

The 101st General Assembly begins its session Jan. 3 and may take another look at the problem.

Legislators said McClure and Moorehead appeared likely to retain their finance committee chairmanships in the new session. That would continue them on the controlling board and require convincing action to win their approval of final survey funds.

Other members of the board in addition to Lausche have favored turnpikes.

Hal Boyle Says:

Don't Modernize Christmas

NEW YORK (AP) — If a grinning, skinny old man wearing a neatly clipped gray mustache, a pink shirt, and a stylish charcoal black suit climbs down your chimney on Christmas Eve, don't shoot him or phone for the police.

He may be Santa Claus! Christmas has gone so modernistic that, sooner or later, someone is going to start a movement to take away old Santa's beard, put him on a diet and turn him into a fashion plate.

But do we want that? Would it really improve Santa Claus to make him look like one of those neat, crisp fellows in the men of distinction ads?

The great value of Santa Claus has been that he makes no effort to keep up with the times, and has remained jolly and changeless and old-fashioned for centuries, a symbol of selfless kindness.

It is a mistake to try to modernize great traditions, and Christmas is a great tradition. But in recent years it has been getting more and more arty and, perhaps, less and less hearty.

Take the Christmas tree itself. Any person of middle age can recall the shared joy of a time when decorating the Christmas tree was a matter of family pride. Everybody took part—Dad, Mom, and the kids.

Practically all the ornaments were homemade. Remember the thrill of threading popcorn and cranberries to rope the green tree with strands of white and red? Remember cutting long slivers of tinfoil from cigarette wrappers hoarded for months?

And remember the moment of ecstasy when Dad, standing on a stepladder, carefully fastened the cardboard star, covered with tinfoil, to the very top of the tree?

Probably in thousands of homes this simple family ritual still goes on unchanged, except that most of the ornaments now are bought at the ten-cent store.

But in many other homes the Christmas tree has become so arty, so tortured out of shape, it is unrecognizable. You go into a guy's home and ask him what he's doing with a clothes rack in his living room, and he replies indignantly:

"What do you mean—clothes rack? That's our Christmas tree."

To make one of these modernistic Christmas trees, the last thing in the world you want is an actual tree. First you need a course in expressionism in the nearest art school. Then you take a stuffed moose head, and lay a piece of bone - white driftwood across its widespread antlers. Next you tear apart an old mattress, then attach the coils of springs to the antlers with a pair of pliers.

Man, you've got something—the most up-to-date Christmas tree on the block, even if you have to explain to the neighbors what it is.

The same situation holds true with Christmas cards. There was a time when you could pick up a Christmas card and tell what it was by how it looked and the message printed on it. If you can do that today, the card is regarded as a flop.

Maybe I'm just getting to be a middle-aged fog. But don't most of us look back to a time when Christmas, always a season of the flowering spirit, had more of heart than art in it? Let us make the modernists keep their paws off Santa Claus. He's perfect as he is.

Back To Brass

FT. HUACHUCA, Ariz. (AP) — Hugh Stark retired from the Army as a corporal and jumped at once on the retired list to the rank of lieutenant colonel. A veteran of 20 years in the Army, Cpl. (Col.) Stark saw action in the European theater during World War II. On his discharge after the war he resigned his commission and re-enlisted in the Regular Army.

Low Tariffs Hurting U.S. Potters, Claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese competition since the war has "practically strangled" the American chinaware business, a domestic industry spokesman told the tariff commission Friday.

J. J. Stein said the American industry flatly opposes any attempt to reduce tariffs on Japanese chinaware imports.

Stein is secretary-manager of the California Pottery Guild of Los Angeles, whose membership produces about 95 per cent of the earthen and chinaware made in California.

He was one of a number of industry spokesmen who appeared before the commission to urge that tariffs on imported pottery—chiefly from Japan—be left at their present level.

The commission and the committee for reciprocity information are preparing a report for use at a February conference in Geneva,

Switzerland, concerning the possible reduction of certain tariffs on goods imported from Japan and other countries.

It was Stein's contention that the Japanese industry is able to undersell American manufacturers because its wages are about one-tenth those of the industry.

Other industry spokesmen scheduled to testify before the commission were: Joseph M. Wells, president of the Homer Laughlin China Co., East Liverpool, Ohio; and Frank Hull of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters of Toledo, Ohio.

VERDICT ON SHEPPARD AWAITED

Chou Expected To Set High Price On Fliers

U.N. Delegates Eye Red Chinese Tack In Coming Conference

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Diplomats speculated today that Red China's Chou En-lai may set a stiff price for release of 11 imprisoned American airmen when he receives U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in Peiping week after next.

The Red Chinese premier indicated in his assent yesterday that he considers the case of the airmen closed.

But delegates acquainted with Peiping's line of reasoning predicted Chou would get down to brass tacks after first insisting his government was in the right and bringing up some complaints against the United States.

Hammarskjold asked for the talks Dec. 10 after the General Assembly voted 47-5 to condemn Red China's imprisonment of the airmen as spies. The Assembly called on the secretary general to intercede for their release. Opposition votes were cast by the Soviet bloc.

Hammarskjold Received Chou's Reply

Chou's reply the same day the Assembly wound up its ninth session, rejecting Communist attacks on U. S. policy in the Far East.

As the session ended the main spotlight was focused on Peiping where Hammarskjold is expected to go shortly after Christmas. Diplomats believe Chou will seek to guide the talks along the following general lines:

1. He will try to impress on Hammarskjold that his regime is completely in control of China.

2. He will protest to the secretary general that the Americans are maintaining what the Chinese have labeled a "nest of spies" on the Nationalist stronghold of Formosa and will warn that the Reds will not consider releasing the airmen until such activities cease.

3. Having thus set the stage he will probably consent to hear Hammarskjold's plea on behalf of the airmen and other imprisoned U. N. personnel.

As a neutral mediator, Hammarskjold would hardly be in a position to bargain, delegates pointed out, but he could relay back Chou's demands.

Liberal Education Said Necessity

COLUMBUS (AP)—"Science and technology have made liberal education a necessity," Dr. Howard Lowry, president of the College of Wooster, told 544 graduates at Ohio State University yesterday.

"They have put before us the literal choice of life or death. They have showed us tangible goals we can achieve at new levels of comprehension and cooperation," he said during the autumn quarter commencement exercises.

Reminding students that a liberal education is not gained through formal study alone, Dr. Lowry stressed that "a life of liberal reading and reflection is something beyond the ivy, something that can start anywhere and at any age."

Reds Repeat Rap

Mendes-France Asks Vote Of Confidence On Monday

PARIS (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France demanded a vote of confidence today after the National Assembly rebuffed his government on its Indochina budget. The vote, set for next Monday, may delay scheduled debate on German rearmament.

Mendes-France staked his government on the budget issue at the end of an all-night Assembly session during which the deputies defeated the premier 301-291 in one voting and gave him only slim majorities on two others. The balloting was on technical points concerning the Indochina budget.

The adverse vote, Mendes-France's first setback in six months in office, left his position considerably weakened but his opponents did not appear eager to throw him out of office on the Indochina issue. They want him to be saddled with the responsibility for pushing through ratification of the Paris treaties to restore German sovereignty and give her the right to rearm.

Assembly debate on the pact had been slated to open Monday and was expected to wind up late Thursday. Now much of Monday likely will be taken up by the confidence vote. The final decision on the Paris pact may not come until Christmas Eve, when the deputies will be anxious to return home.

Parliamentary opposition to Mendes-France organized while he was tied up in meetings yesterday with ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He scheduled to talk with U. S.

Water Resources Inventory Urged By Ohio Group

COLUMBUS (AP)—The governor's Advisory Committee on Ohio Water Resources says the state's rainfall normally is sufficient to meet water needs of the future "if properly managed."

But the committee also noted in its preliminary report:

"The expanding population and growth of industry and agriculture are making increasingly heavy demands on the water resources."

The committee called for "an accelerated program for basic inventories of the water and other natural resources" in each area drained by any river and its tributaries.

Such an inventory is necessary to determine costs and benefits of "large scale reservoir projects, pipe lines, and other major construction projects," the report said.

Civilians To Hold A-Bomb Trigger

NATO Chieftains In Agreement On Defense Against Red Attack

PARIS (AP)—Leaders of the Atlantic Alliance announced today agreements that civilian governments must keep the final say on the use of atomic weapons in the defense of Western Europe.

The decision was disclosed in the final communique issued following a two-day meeting of the foreign, defense and finance ministers of the 14 North Atlantic Treaty Organization members.

The conference approved a defense plan based on the use of thermonuclear weapons if needed to hurl back any invasion.

The decision did not appear to bind the United States to consult with the Allies in cases of grave emergency nor to change any standing instructions which may already have been given to Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme Allied commander for Europe.

The "new look" pattern for defense was drafted by the chiefs of staff of the member countries.

THE UNITED States is known to favor consultation before resorting to atomic warfare but has been opposed to a binding commitment which might be unworkable in emergencies.

There was no mention in the announcement of a French scheme for a small "political standing group" with power to "pull the trigger" if full NATO consultation proved impossible.

In their communique, the ministers said they were convinced member countries must maintain strong armies over a long period to deter aggression.

Soviet policy, they said, continues to be backed by "ever-increasing military power" and is aimed at weakening and dividing the Western World.

In the face of current pressure from Moscow for "coexistence," the NATO Council declared:

"Soviet policy contributes no constructive solution for ensuring world security and for maintaining the freedom of peoples. It provides no ground for believing that the

Nationalist Paper Raps Swap Idea

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—An influential Chinese Nationalist newspaper asserted today that any swap of Chinese students in the United States for the 11 U. S. airmen jailed by Red China would be degrading to U. S. leadership.

The independent United Daily News suggested instead that the students be sent to Formosa.

The newspaper spoke out following reports that the United States might consider trading 35 Chinese students now in America for the 11 airmen imprisoned as spies.

Pope's Rest Disturbed By Hiccups Again

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A reliable source said today ailing Pope Pius XII passed "a none too tranquil night." His rest was again disturbed by hiccups.

But the pontiff's doctors hope that if the weather is good he will be able to take an automobile ride later today in the Vatican gardens.

The ride would be part of a new course of treatment aimed at increasing gradually the pope's physical activities.

The 78-year-old head of the Roman Catholic Church has not left his Vatican apartment since his grave collapse Dec. 2. X-rays taken two days ago showed he is suffering from a small hernia of the esophagus, near where it joins the stomach, and from gastritis.

A highly placed source said yesterday the gastritis, an inflammation of the stomach, is of a hemorrhagic nature and causes a slow loss of blood.

His physicians hope to build up the pope's strength with increased food and to enliven his appetite by such outings as the auto ride.

Further details of the new course of treatment were not disclosed. It was decided on yesterday during the pope's two long conferences the pope's private physician, Dr. Riccardo Galeazzi-Lisi, had with consulting specialists.

Noting that the pontiff continues to be quite weak, Dr. Galeazzi-Lisi said it was necessary to build up his strength before considering an operation for the hernia.

CHICAGO (AP)—It was more rain or snow for areas in the eastern third of the country today while clear skies prevailed in most other parts of the country.

Snow continued during the night across most of the Midwest and the Great Lakes region. Heaviest falls, ranging from 3 to 6 inches, were reported in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Coldest weather was along the western slopes of the Rockies with a low of 12 degrees below zero at Eagle, Colo. Warmest was Miami with 72 above.

Jury Starts Second Day Of Deliberations

Fate Of Cleveland Doctor Hanging Balance On Decision

CLEVELAND (AP)—Dr. Samuel Sheppard waits through the most anxious hours of his life today.

The jurors in his murder trial resumed their deliberations this morning after 12 hours of discussion yesterday. Not the slightest hint has come from behind the guarded doors of the conference room as to whether they are near a verdict or how they are voting.

Sheppard is accused of murdering his pregnant wife, Marilyn.

If the jury finds him guilty of murder in the first degree, and does not recommend mercy, the law requires that he must die in the electric chair.

As the long, slow hours passed, courtroom observers began to speculate about the possibility that the jurors were deadlocked.

However, they have an enormous mass of material to consider. The written record of the nine-week trial amounts to more than a million words. And there are 214 "exhibits," including photographs, letters, personal possessions of the accused man, the blood-spattered coverings of the bed where Marilyn Sheppard died.

LAWYERS SAID it might take many hours just to examine all this before the discussions get started in earnest.

The seven men and five women jurors looked tired, and some of them seemed a little grim last night when Judge Edward Blythin excused them and sent them to a hotel for the night.

There is no time limit to the jury's deliberations, the judge said later. He declared:

"I don't think there is any limit, and even Sunday is a fine day. As long as the defendant is in court, I don't think there is any law against deliberating or returning a verdict on Sunday."

Marilyn Sheppard's body was found July 4 on a blood-soaked bed in an upstairs room at her home in Bay Village, a prosperous suburb 12 miles west of (Continued on Page Two)

Korea 'Orphan' Only Boy With Imagination

NAHA, Okinawa (AP)—The GIs called him Jim Bob. The police called him Syngman Rhee. He was just 11.

Police picked him up for loitering near a military installation and this was his tearful story:

He had been "orphaned on the battle fields of Korea." Sympathetic GIs had adopted him and brought him to Okinawa. He had worked as a houseboy for them until they went home to the U. S.

Now he was homeless in an alien land. He even had forgotten the Korean tongue of his fathers. All he could speak was English, American style. It gushed out in a stream.

U. S. military officials urged that he be permitted to stay on Okinawa. Sympathetic immigration officials made him a "prisoner at large" while they sought ways to save him from deportation.

At this point, a distraught Japanese showed up and identified Jim Bob Syngman Rhee as his wayward son who had run away a month ago from his Okinawa home. The family had come from Japan two years ago.

And his teacher verified that the lad had "an excellent command of English and also an excellent imagination."

So "Jim Bob Syngman Rhee" isn't going anywhere—except back to school.

Yuletide's Meaning Topic Of Sermon For Calvary EUB

A unified service of worship will be conducted Sunday morning at 9 a. m. in the Calvary Evangelical United Brethren Church. The entire church, including the children's department will worship together during this service.

The Rev. James B. Recob, pastor of Calvary Church, has announced his topic for Christmas Sunday to be "The Meaning of Christmas". He will point out that while Christmas means many different things to many different people, the day is truly a Christian "holy-day" only when it is observed as the anniversary of the birth of the Savior, Jesus Christ.

The order of worship will be directed by the Rev. Mr. Recob Sunday morning. He will be assisted by Dale De Long, Miss Minnie Wilkerson, church pianist, will play for the prelude, "O Holy Night", by Adams, arranged by Hess. Her offertory selection will be, "My Christmas Prayer", by Martin.

A variety of Christmas music will be sung on Christmas Sunday morning. The children's department will sing a group of Christmas selections. They are directed by Mrs. W. C. Shasteen and accompanied in their singing by Mrs. Nelson Lape.

The Christian Carolers Choir, directed and accompanied by Mrs. Richard Crawford, will sing two selections: "To Welcome Christmas Time" and "A Savior, Christ the Lord", both by Tillotson. In addition to this, Charles Meacham, of Columbus, will sing as guest soloist during the worship hour.

At the conclusion of the worship service the Christmas story will be discussed in the church's Sunday school classes. The general theme of the morning's lesson is, "Glory To God in the Highest". A sound-movie film, "Child of Bethlehem", will be shown to the children's department during the Sunday school hour.

Both men and women of ancient Egypt often put a lump of scented unguent on their heads to wear at festivals.

CHRISTMAS CAROL

They are not wise, these three small men. They are simple in the way of children. They bear little semblance to the three Princes who came to Christ's manger to pay homage . . . save that they, too, bear gifts, offering them with a song, a Christmas carol upon their lips.

Behind them stands the Church, the home of Christ, the house that welcomes those who would visit Him. These youngsters are among His regular visitors, and for them Christmas has a very special meaning.

Though they will have a tree trimmed with shining ornaments, brightly wrapped packages, fun and laughter, they will be deeply conscious of the true meaning of this glorious season. Through their church they have learned the wonders of God's love—which endures not just at Christmas but throughout every day of every year.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

LATTER-DAY "ALICE"

LABORITE LEADER Clem Attlee has unburdened himself of a spate of specious logic which proves how blind the starry-eyed can be to the bright light of reason. Recently returned from his "see no evil" pilgrimage to Red China, good ol' Clem can now see no reason for the Allies to postpone a big four conference with the Soviets until their hard-won Western alliance has been ratified.

Such parliamentary action will not give them anything more than "potential strength" anyway, he notes, so why the delay?

In a speech to the House of Commons that should qualify Attlee as the latter-day Lewis Carroll of the political wonderland, the former British prime minister asserts that the Western powers, by simply declaring their will to get together, have already accomplished their purpose.

Furthermore, Clem adds, it will take at least two years for that potential strength to become an actuality, which is all the more reason for not waiting for ratification.

"Alice" Attlee's fuzzy arguments could not be more obvious if the reds had advanced them themselves. The Soviets have fought doggedly to deter an effective European defense alliance complete with German participation. Now that such an alliance is closer to reality than ever, the Soviets are beside themselves trying to stave it off.

But Clem Attlee, talking in circles in London, is not likely to be of great help.

POLICY CHANGE?

WHETHER A DIRECTIVE by Defense Secretary Wilson cautioning procurement officers to avoid concentrating defense orders in the hands of a few contractors is a sharp reversal of recent policy is not entirely clear, but it appears to be so despite official denials.

The previous policy of so dispersing defense orders as to maintain a broad base for industrial mobilization in an emergency was a road block in Mr. Wilson's course of paring the defense budget. The costly inefficiency of the plan irked the defense secretary.

Wilson has been criticized by leftwingers for not regarding defense procurement as a make-work program for purposes of employment relief. He has also been accused of favoring large firms in the awarding of contracts, but nearly all of the contracts involved in such criticism were awarded under the Truman administration.

In any event, the present policy of the Defense Department is to award contracts without favoritism to big suppliers, but not to favor small bidders if such action would be clearly out of line price-wise. Whether this is a reversal or a continuance of former policy depends on who is explaining the setup at the moment.

These Days

Apparently there are limitless funds for all sorts of efforts to flood the country with one side of the problems that face us. There is the A.D.A. (Americans for Democratic Action), the National Committee for an Effective Congress which collects money for Congressional campaigns and passes it on to favorites of both parties, thus breaking down the two-party system.

Now along comes the "National Issues Committee," "a non-partisan, non-profit educational association," headed by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Chairman. The Board members are the usual names, with a new one here and there, the same names that one finds on so many committees.

This committee puts out a Washington newsletter, which is a euphemism for a great many propaganda sheets. The object of the newsletter is 'you can help get the facts around.' So I looked at the first issue that came to hand which contained this item:

"Denver: The Post (for Eisenhower in 1952) has completed a national survey of what it calls 'applied mccarthyism' in the schools. Among its extensive findings: Local FBI agents in Utah, Ohio, Colorado, California, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania have been volunteering derogatory information about school teachers to state officials.

"School teachers all across the country," says The Post, 'are operating under the all-seeing eyes of the FBI.'

It would be of great value if "The Issue," as the newsletter is called, would provide some evidence of the "applied mccarthyism" of the FBI. It would also be of value if "applied mccarthyism" were defined and the relationship of it to the FBI were made clear. The 'm' beginning the word, 'mccarthyism,' is spelled with a small letter which may be clever but is not grammatical no matter who does it.

Furthermore, what is the derogatory information that the FBI is supplying to state officials and is this supply voluntary or is it being requested to safeguard the schools from Communists, subversives and spies?

I have here quoted the item in full. There is nothing more to it. Perhaps if you want more evidence, or a better explanation, you can write the Denver "Post" and get it from them. Perhaps they will send you their survey. It looks funny to me because if the FBI undertook to watch, screen, check and report on every school teacher in the United States, it would have to have a staff five or six times larger than has been provided by the Budget.

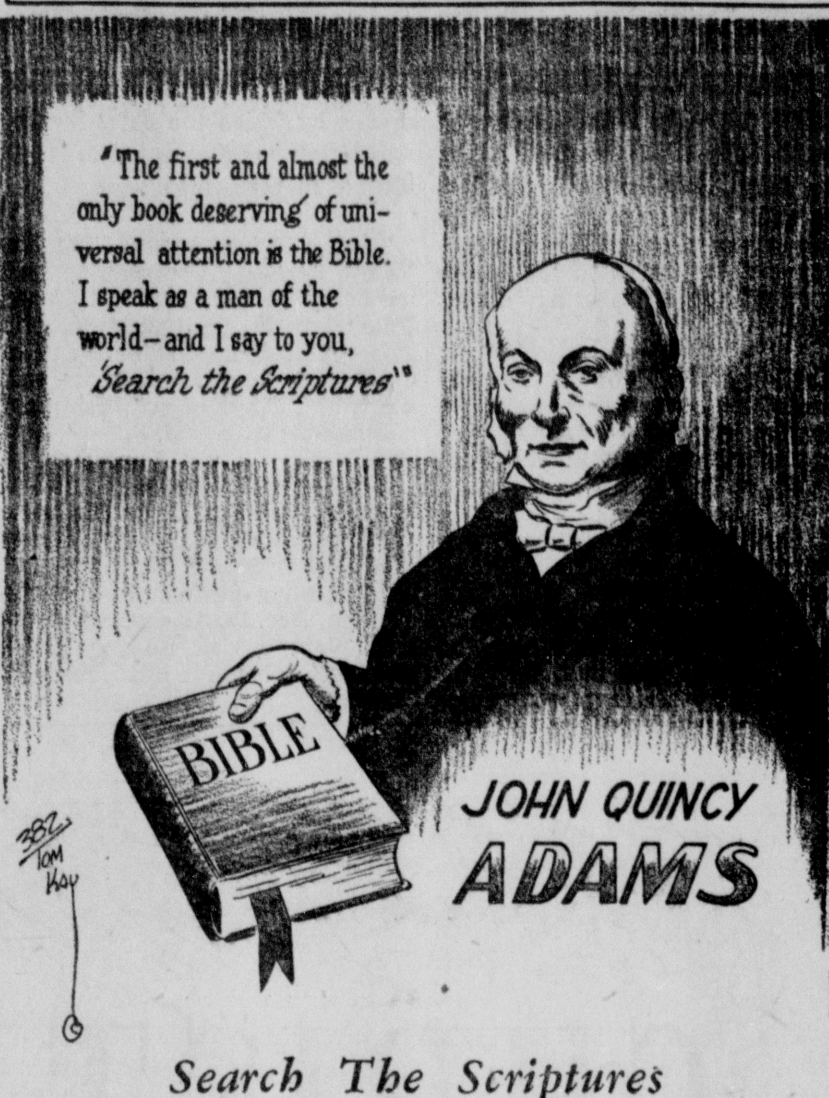

Who is trying to scare school teachers? Most of them—the vast majority of them—are loyal Americans with no subversive or Communist affiliations. That would be true of Americans in any walk of life. For what reason is this scare pitched into the teaching profession? Is it because a small number of Communists have been caught by several Congressional committees who have had or have now Communist affiliations? Is somebody trying to start a movement to hamstring the FBI so that it will not be able to do the work which Congress has set for it?

Operation for Ulcer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MEDICAL care and strict adherence to a special diet are usually enough to calm an ulcer. But sometimes they aren't.

That means you'll need an operation, and several types of surgery can be performed to get rid of the ulcer.

In a gastric resection, a segment of the stomach is removed, particularly the portion of the stomach where ulcers tend to form. From one-third to two-thirds of the stomach may be taken out.

Acid Secretions The surgeon also attaches the second part of the small part of the small bowel, known as the jejunum, to the stomach. This prevents the acid secretions of the stomach from reaching the first part of the intestine, or duodenum, where ulcers also tend to develop.

Following such an operation, food is not retained long in the remaining section of the stomach, but passed quickly into the small bowel.

Schedule Your Meals

Consequently, if you undergo a gastric resection, you must eat smaller meals at more frequent intervals. Your stomach, naturally, can't hold as much when its capacity has been reduced by from one to two-thirds. You should probably follow the diet I outlined for you Wednesday.

In another surgical procedure, gastro-enterostomy, the duodenum is also "short-circuited" by connecting the upper portion of the stomach to the jejunum.

Another Method

There's another method, too, of relieving you of an ulcer. In this, the ulcer is simply cut out and the openings sewed up. But this is only a temporary measure, since the area where the ulcers usually form is left in the stomach.

So, you see, one way or another, you can usually get rid of a troublesome ulcer.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

W. M. C.: I am a diabetic and have been eating rolled oats for some time. Is the oatmeal too warming to the blood?

Answer: There is no such thing as a food being warming to the blood. However, if you are suffering from diabetes, foods rich in carbohydrates, such as oatmeal, should not be eaten in large amounts.

Your physician will plan your diet for you, in order to control the diabetic condition.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

CINDY was light of heart once more; the loneliness, the homesickness she had admitted to Gary Norbeck that morning at the pool had vanished. She had not had to keep her "flags flying" for, for these past several days, SHE, the aunt she refused to claim as a relative, was staying shut in her wing when she was not driving away somewhere. And Aunt Jennie, who before had been the one to shut herself in, now came frequently out into the yard. Aunt Jennie left the door between her part of the house and the kitchen wing open, day and night. Aunt Jennie brought food to her which she needed, for her stock was running low, her money, too.

Cindy made her first stew out of beef from a can and carrots and small onions from her garden. Proud of her effort, she invited Aunt Jennie to share it. While they were eating, Aunt Jennie asked her about her father, though not in a prying way. And Cindy told of the wonderful times she always had when her father came to Covington. Telling about them brought those good times and her father close to her.

"I'm sure he'll be here before the summer's over. Dan said he'd come. He'll come unexpectedly—the way he's always come to Dan's and Brigit's. He had a key and he'd just open the door and walk in."

"I'll be glad to see him," Aunt Jennie said. "I haven't, for a long time." And Cindy was ready to accept this aunt, for saying that.

Two days ago Aunt Jennie had asked, "I've some marketing to do in the village. Would you like to walk down with me?"

"Oh, yes, I'd love to!"

It was something different to do. And Cindy liked the way Aunt Jennie introduced her to the woman at the post-office and to the man at the bank. "My brother's daughter," then they stopped at Mr. Middleton's house. "I want Mr. Middleton's cousin to meet you."

The cousin Nettie and Aunt Jennie seemed to be good friends, though now that had come about Cindy could not understand. The cousin pressed a box of cookies on her to bring back with her. The cookies were very good.

But it was swimming at the pool which contributed mostly to her light-heartedness. With Gary Norbeck there every morning and Enid not there some of the times. On one of these mornings she went with Gary to his cabin to see his last painting of her. She had liked this one. She went back in the afternoon of that day and he painted her again, sitting on his doorstep. She did not care now that he did not talk while he worked; she liked the way he looked at her over the top of the canvas, a seeing way, that made a queer warm thrill go through her.

Copyright, 1953, by Jane Abbott. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

"Enid, I believe I am falling in love."

Enid drove frequently after supper to a farm a few miles up the road for milk and butter and eggs, and this evening Cindy had gone with her. She had to talk about Gary...

"With Gary Norbeck," Enid did not make it a question, nor did she give any sign of excitement. Cindy considered such a confidence should arouse.

"Who else up here? He's a lot older but I like him more for that and it makes it—sort of serious!"

"Is he falling in love with you?"

A bluntness in Enid's question made it almost a demand to know. As if a girl could know right at first, at least for certain! It showed that Enid knew nothing of the thrilling stages of falling in love!

Cindy answered, a little loftily, "Well, he looks at me sometimes, as if he were!"

Now, whenever she saw Hester drive out of the yard she let Nip and Tuck outside to play. They liked best to play in the barn, and from her back window she could see them if they came out into the yard. Often she sat in the barn door while, inside, they sniffed in covey corners, and chased each other in and out of the empty stalls.

But this afternoon, after she let the cats out, she put water over her stove to heat for some washing. Everyone was gone. She had seen Aunt Jennie walk down the road an hour earlier. A few minutes ago Hester had gone out to her car, started it, then stopped, gone back into her wing, and Enid had come out with her and got in behind the wheel, looking unwilling, Cindy thought, peeping at them through her window.

She sang happily as she rubbed and rinsed, and again as she hung out her wash. Gary had not come to the pool this morning, but there was tomorrow... Maybe, tomorrow, he'd want to do another painting of her.

Later, mindful that Hester might return any minute, she went out to the barn to corral her cats. They were nowhere in sight but she heard the crackle of dry old hay in the loft and climbed up the ladder. The cats were in a corner, jumping into the hay, tossing it up, rolling in it. Cindy joined them in their play, picking up handfuls of the hay and burying them under it.

Then her hand slipped between the planks, touched something hard. A small tin box. She lifted it out curiously. It was exciting to find it. The cats, tiring of their game, were rubbing against her ankles. "Let's go down," she said to them. She went down the ladder, a little shiver running through her fingers from the clammy feeling of the box in her hand. The cats scrambled down after her.

The big car came into the yard just a moment or so after she closed her door behind herself and the cats. She waited until she saw Enid and Hester go into their door. Then she opened the box.

Money. She gave a gasp of surprise. Bills—the box was packed with them. Some $20 bills lay on the top. She drew back from the table. It must belong to the old man who'd lived here, and he was dead.

Alarm struck her. Hester might come in—she might accuse her of stealing it! She closed the box, carried it to the old chest, opened the drawer that held her father's uncle's clothes and hid the box under them. She would leave it there until her father came.

Jennie Todd always had taken her early walks along the road. But one day she went into the fields. She liked the feeling of the rough grass under her step, the smell of it. She sat down on the ground under a tree. "Tomorrow I'll bring a book over here with me!"

She was aware of a feeling of competency which she never had felt before. Of thinking without the old confusion which so often had troubled it. She thought as she sat under the tree: "I'm staying here, but I've got to have something to live on! My savings won't last very long." And she dwelt on the problem quite practically. Boarders? Her wing would not accommodate any. A bookshop in town, or a lending library? "There wouldn't be enough income to make a living out of it."

Then suddenly she remembered what the postmistress had said about being tired of her job. She knew such appointments were made in Washington—but were they for a small town like Killbuck? She thought: "I'd like it. Having people come in, giving them their mail. Talking to them the way that woman talked to me. Like a friend... I'll ask Wick Middleton about it!"

The next day she walked down to the town. She went to Wick Middleton's office.

She went at once into the matter that had brought her here. "I've resigned from that school—I have to do something to earn some money. I thought..." With the warm interest that came into his face it did not seem fantastic to tell him what the postmistress had said to her and suggest that perhaps she could get the appointment.

"You really want to stay there on the farm?" he asked. Jennie flushed, laughed. "It is a new experience for me—to make a different life for myself, even to think about it! To be—not afraid to think!"

"Good," said Wick Middleton. (To Be Continued)

news behind the news

Editor's Note: Every Saturday, Mr. Tucker answers readers' questions of general interest on national and international policies and personalities. Questions may be sent to him at 7008 Hillcrest Place, Chevy Chase, Maryland.

WASHINGTON — An historically minded reader in Sturgis, Mich., suggests that it is time to destroy the political legend that it was Senate Republicans who wrecked Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations, the model for the Roosevelt-Churchill United Nations.

The suggestion is currently timely because of the Democrats' contention that they have given, and probably will give, greater support to President Eisenhower's broad foreign policy than members of his own party on Capitol Hill.

The opposition, of course, is flailing at the Knowland-McCarthy break with the White House, and its effect on Ike's collective security pact in the session opening January 3, 1955.

LEAGUE VOTE—I have verified the Sturgis correspondent's report from a reading of newspaper accounts of the League of Nations controversy at the Congressional Library. It is true that more Democrats voted against ratification of the League Covenant than those who voted in favor of the so-called "parliament of man."

The final vote was taken on March 19, 1920. The tally was 49 in favor and 35 against. Twenty-eight Republicans and twenty-one Democrats voted in the affirmative. In opposition there were twelve Republicans and twenty-three Democrats. Thus, numerically, the Democrats provided the votes to kill both the German Peace Treaty and the League Covenant.

But there is a catch in this historical controversy is presented to the Senate, the Treaty and the League Covenant contained the so-called "Lodge Reservations," framed by the uncle of the man who now represents the United States before the United Nations.

that his reservations safeguarded vital U. S. interests. Wilson insisted that they gutted the League structure, and would break "the great heart of mankind."

So the Democrats were voting against Lodge, not against the League.

"Kindly tell us the story of the Roosevelt Museum at Hyde Park, N. Y.," writes W. F. I. of Rye, N. Y. "Do the taxpayers support it? Who is in charge of it, and is it self-supporting? We hear that somebody is compiling the Roosevelt history at this museum. If so, is this at the taxpayers' expense?"

Answer: For a family which capitalized so handsomely on the White House—I am thinking of James' insurance deals, Elliott's borrowings and Anna's unsuccessful newspaper ventures—the gift of F.D.R.'s home and library to the federal government was a generous act.

FULL TITLE—In 1939, pursuant to a joint congressional resolution, the estate was designated as a national historical site.

By Ray Tucker

Jan. 15, 1944, with the family retaining a life interest in the home and in 33.23 acres. Upon the death of F.D.R., Mrs. Roosevelt and her children waived their life interests, and full title to the area was accepted by the Secretary of the Interior on November 21, 1945.

Congress appropriates money for the annual upkeep. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954, the amount was $93,725 for the home, and $57,200 for the library. But the receipts from paid admissions to the home and the library almost offset these federal contributions. The income from visitors to the home alone in 1953 totaled $42,679, and payments for inspecting the library were only slightly smaller. In 1953, 304,353 people visited the place.

The state of New York and the village of Hyde Park, of course, lose the taxes which Mrs. Roosevelt would have had to pay, if she had not released the property to Uncle Sam. Any responsible historian may use the library papers to compile a Roosevelt history.

Visitors were present for the session from the states of Georgia, Wisconsin, Louisiana and Oregon, as well as from other chapters in Ohio.

Following the business session, Harold Sharpe, Worthy Patron, read the Christmas story from Scriptures. Special music was provided by Mrs. Ralph Dunkel. A short memorial honoring the late Lewis Mebs, who had been a member of the order, included drawing of the charter.

At the close of the meeting, the members and guests repaired the Red Room, which was decorated with Christmas symbols. Packages for a gift exchange were placed under a lighted Christmas tree. The refreshment table was centered with a miniature white grand piano, surrounded by Christmas decorations and flanked by candelabra. Mrs. Robert Betts and her committee were in charge of decorations and refreshments.

The program closed with group singing of Christmas carols, under the direction of Mrs. Dunkle. Mrs. Elaine Bowman at the piano accompanied the group.

In a previous account describing the installation of officers conducted by the chapter, the name of Mrs. Tom Acord, who served as conductor, was inadvertently omitted from the list of the installing officers.

Holiday Stains Can Be Removed From Tablecloth

Many a hostess groans to discover that her best table linen bears the mark of cranberry sauce, gravy or other food.

However, the cloth is washable and practically any stain will come off if quick action is taken.

Meat juice stains require soaking in cold water. Then sponge off in warm soapsuds. Spongy g r a v y spots with cold or tepid water, then wash in lukewarm suds. Never use hot water, since hot water sets the stain.

If the stain is from cranberries, stretch the spot over a bowl and hold it securely with a rubber band or string. Then pour boiling water on it from a height of two or three feet.

Wash thoroughly in soap and water. If the sun won't injure the fabric, hang it in the sun to dry.

Dinner beverages that overflow can be sponged with warm water and soap, and cream sauces yield to the same simple treatment.

Salad oils respond to simple soap and water laundering, with a little extra rubbing for good measure. Treat butter stains the same way.

The dessert is one course that is extremely apt to make its mark on the banquet cloth, especially if there's the happy combination of large ice cream portions and small guests. It's wise to give them the two-step treatment. First, sponge with cool or lukewarm water to remove the sugar and the protein.

Next, wash in warm suds to remove the residue. Treat tea and coffee stains as you would cranberry stains.

For milk spots, soak first in cold or lukewarm water, and follow with a soap and warm water washing. Use soap and water to handle lipstick stains, candle drip smears and stains from fresh flowers.

Christmas Cheer Found In Cotton Feed Bag Gifts

For many folks, Christmas cheer will come in cotton bags this year.

The National Cotton Council reports that gifts can be made and easily and inexpensively from the colorful containers of feed, flour, and fertilizer.

The empty bags are used the year round for home sewing by thousands of imaginative, budget-minded women. They are available in bright prints, cambric sheetings, linen-like osnaburges, and even flannel. Pretty and practical gifts made from these fabrics are sure to delight the family and friends.

Stuffed animals and toys are perennial favorites with the younger set. The Council suggests a life-sized "bag" doll as a new and thrilling gift for a little girl. Osnaburg bag fabric dyed stockings that Santa can fill to overflowing. The stockings can be decorated with a snow man, Christmas trees, and other holiday symbols made from print bag scraps.

Mannish looking plaids and checks, in both subdued and gay colors, are plentiful among cotton bags this year. These prints are appropriate for ties, lounging robes, sports shirts, and shorts for the men and boys.

Gifts such as pillow cases, table cloths, napkins, aprons, and tea towels come ready-made in the bag. A specially-designed 100-lb. feed container rips into a luncheon cloth and four napkins ready to use, except for hemming. No sewing is necessary to convert some 25-lb. flour and 50-lb. feed sacks into pillow cases. The trick can be accomplished by ripping the chain-stitched seams, removing the labels, and laundering the material.

Preparing other cotton bags for sewing is a simple process, the Council says. Chain-stitched seams rip out in a jiffy when corner threads are clipped. Band labels, or trade names printed in washout inks, come off easily when the containers are soaked in water.

Berger Guild 16 Has Dinner Meet

The members of Berger Hospital Guild 16 enjoyed a dinner party at Pickaway Arms for an annual Christmas meeting. Mrs. Barton Deming served as hostess to the group in her home on W. Mound St. following the dinner.

A short business session was held and the remainder of the evening was spent in games. Mrs. Frank Bowling and Mrs. Dwight Steele were awarded the gifts for the evening.

Schedule Home Activities To Eliminate Rush

Got everything set for the holidays? If you have you are an exception. Bet you forgot to order the wreaths or check the stove or your Christmas lights. There is so much to do that unless you get an early start the last hours are pretty hectic. If you think it is too early to become annoyed by the 'little things' why not make a checklist in your spare time. Keep it hanging in a prominent spot and perhaps you will do things as you come to them. At least it will serve as a reminder that there is plenty to be done. Here are some suggestions:

1. Is the family coming? Or have you invited dear friends? If so you will need to get that guest room or other sleeping area ready. Curtains should be washed and starched if necessary. Bedspreads and blankets should be oil-checked. See that bulbs are in order and a few books are on the night-chest. Do you have enough linens and blankets?

2. Check the stove. You do not want a last minute breakdown or a fallen cake. Let your husband check the oven against tilt with his carpenter's level. Or fill a pan with water to test the degree of tilt. A few wedges will level the stove and insure even baking.

Clean your stove thoroughly. New oven cleaners make this an easy job. Spread some newspapers in the stove, applying oven cleaner with the brush attached to the lid—to oven lining, broiler pans, racks and shelves. Wear rubber gloves. Let cleaner stand for two hours and then rinse off with a little water and vinegar.

3. Are your table supplies ready? Do you have the right amount of china, glassware, flatware? If not there is still time perhaps to add to your regular patterns or fill in the void with borrowed pieces.

4. Plan a centerpiece so you will not be scrounging around at the last minute looking for something to help dress the table. Candles are inexpensive and indispensable to table cheer. Plan a large bowl filled with nuts, oranges, apples and a cascade of grapes. Stick into it a few sprigs of broom corn, heather, dried Hawaiian flowers, slim tapers.

5. Check your table linens. There is still time to replace worn table cloths and napkins. Shine the silver—holloware and flatware.

6. Get out the wooden salad bowls and trays. Apply ordinary household petroleum jelly to them, rubbing well into the wood and polish to an even luster. If the outside of the bowl has become gummy from oil and dust wash it with soap and water and rub lightly with sandpaper before applying the jelly.

7. This is the time to write the menu, organize your shopping list. 8. Windows take time to clean. Get an early start. Ditto cleaning and waxing furniture. Spruce up upholstery with one of the new quick cleaners.

Dutch Apple Cake Is Good Holiday Breakfast Treat

Many families will be entertaining house guests some time during the holiday season. That means not only extra-special luncheon and dinner menus, but also breakfast entertaining. A grand idea for a Yuletide breakfast treat is this top-sy-turvy Dutch apple cake—and it's equally good as a tea-time snack.

Dutch Apple Cake
¼ cup margarine
¼ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon milk
2 baking apples, peeled and sliced thin
2 cups sifted enriched flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons sugar
teaspoon salt
1-3 cup margarine
1 egg
¾ cup milk
Melt margarine and add brown sugar, cinnamon, and milk. Pour into a 9-inch layer pan or square pan. Arrange sliced apples in brown sugar mixture. Sift together flour, baking powder, sugar, and salt. Cut in margarine as for biscuits. Combine egg with milk and add to flour mixture. Stir only until flour disappears. Spread dough carefully over apples. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 45-50 minutes. Serve up-side-down, garnished with whipped cream if desired. This makes one 9-inch cake.

Ashville Garden Club Has Annual Christmas Tea

The members of the Ashville Garden club held an annual Christmas meeting and tea in the home of the Misses Kathryn and Frances Decker near Ashville. The rooms were decorated for the occasion in keeping with a holiday theme.

During a business session, roll call was answered by 33 members. Five guests were welcomed to the session. The Christmas project committee reported that two collegiate dictionaries had been purchased as a gift to the Pickaway County Children's Home.

A report was given on plans for decorating and lighting the Ashville community Christmas tree. This Norway Spruce has been decorated each year since it was planted in 1938 by the garden club. William Fischer is in charge of decorations this year.

Following the business session, Mrs. Kathryn Decker, program chairman, presented Mrs. Russell Hedges, who gave a reading, "The Legend of the Poinsettia". Miss Jane Marion of Groveport sang several numbers, playing her own accompaniment on an auto-harp. Group singing of Christmas carols concluded the program for the event.

The hostesses, assisted by their sister, Mrs. James Fagin, distributed packages for a gift exchange among the members.

Mrs. Link Brown and Mrs. G. D. McDowell presided at a tea table, which was decorated in Christmas symbols. Hospitality committee members for the tea were: Mrs. Warren Bastian, Mrs. Chester Rockey, Mrs. Joseph Peters and Mrs. Harold Hines.

Yes, when all the family is around to take part in this important decision. Today the common-sense of pre-need memorial buying is accepted and acted upon all over the country... people are erecting beautiful family memorials before a single piece of ground is actually needed for burial.

Ashville Farmers Honored At Meeting Of Shorthorn Groups

ROUNDUP

Pickaway County farmers can obtain experienced advice and up-to-date literature on their farming problems at the County Extension Office located in the Post Office Building, S. Court St., Circleville. The office here is the link between district farmers and the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.

Young farmers from Ashville came in for a great deal of the enthusiastic applause recently when the Ohio Southern Breeders Association joined with the Ohio Polled Shorthorn Association for the third annual combined banquet held by those organizations.

The banquet was held in Columbus following a business meeting of group.

Vernon Benroth of Willow Farms, Washington C. H., is the new president of that Association. Other officers elected at the group's gathering were: William J. Hoewisch of Sidney, vice president; Betty Royon of Acadia Farms, Northfield secretary; and Mrs. Harry Baxter of Cloverleaf Farms, Tiffin, treasurer.

H. D. Fleming of Vaughnville, was made a new director of the association for a three-year term. Dr. O. W. House of Willow Lee Farms, Washington C. H., was re-elected a director, also to serve through 1957.

Monday, March 7, has been claimed by the association as the date for the 1955 Ohio State Shorthorn Show and Sale, and the Delaware County Fairgrounds at Delaware has again been selected as the site of this annual auction.

After the business meeting, the shorthorn breeders group joined with the polled shorthorn association for the combined banquet.

A featured speaker was A. L. Sorensen, Ohio State Director of Agriculture. The overflow crowd cheered as trophies were awarded by the two associations to several 4-H and FFA boys and girls for winning grand champion ships over all breeds with their Shorthorn steers at their 1954 county fairs.

Among those honored was Paul Teegardin Jr., of Ashville. Loud applause also accompanied the presentation of trophies to Carol Teegardin of Ashville for showing the grand champion Shorthorn female and Clint B. Teegardin of Ashville for showing the grand champion steer in the junior division of the 1954 Ohio State Fair.

Neal Carpenter, Ohio State University agricultural economist, has urged farmers of all ages to get their social security number by January. He appealed especially to farmers 65 years and older to get their records established early to avoid delay in benefit payments.

Carpenter suggested farmers call at their local post office for help in getting a social security return.

All farm operators with a net income of $400 or more are required to file a social security return.

Farmers who will pay $100 or more to any one hired laborer in 1955 must get an employer's identification card. Employers are responsible for withholding two percent of employees' wages and adding 2 percent to it at the end of the year. Employers must list each employee's full name and social security number correctly for employees to get credit for payments.

Over-dried soil samples will not give accurate test results, Jack Dement, director of the Ohio State University soils testing program, warned farmers.

He advised farmers to dry soil samples at room temperature before sending them in for soil tests. If laboratory technicians have to take time to dry samples, they can't operate the laboratory at its capacity. Even if they could, the laboratory isn't big enough to dry all the soil samples in Ohio.

Soil test results from samples sent to the laboratory now will reach farmers in plenty of time for spring planting. The number of samples in the laboratory during winter is lower than at other seasons and farmers will get results faster.

DeMent said soil may be sampled anytime it is dry enough that water doesn't run out of it. Water draining from soil may take plant food with it, thus causing inaccurate tests. Most important, he said, is to have the soil sample dry enough that it can be mixed evenly.

County extension offices have sample bags and mailing instructions for soil samples. Extension agents can also give farmers more information about sampling soil for test and help them interpret test results.

There is still time to mulch strawberries for higher berry yields next year, Vernon Paterson, Ohio State University extension fruit specialist reminded growers. Mulch protects plants from damage caused by alternate freezing and thawing.

Clean straw, sawdust or shavings are good mulch materials, the specialist said. Leaves and other materials tend to pack and smother the plants.

He recommended applying straw 3 to 4 inches deep, or enough sawdust or shavings to cover the plant crowns.

CIO, Pennsy RR Schedule Parley

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A CIO Transport Workers union group will meet next Wednesday with representatives of the Pennsylvania Railroad to discuss means of returning thousands of the PRR's furloughed maintenance workers to an active status.

TWU President Michael Quill estimated in a letter to James M. Symes, PRR president, that 10,000 to 12,000 employees who are members of the TWU's Railroad Workers Division are on furlough. Some, Quill said, have had that status for a year. The men were employed in shops in Wilmington, Del.; Altoona, Pa.; Columbus, Ohio; and Terre Haute, Ind.

Blaze Routs 38

CLEVELAND (AP)—Fire left 38 persons homeless yesterday as it swept through a two-and-a-half story frame structure, causing damage estimated by firemen at $12,000. No one was injured.

Lausche's Plea On Survey Fund Is Given Chill

'What's Hurry,' GOP Solon Says As Chief Presses Tollroad Bid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche's personal plea may not loosen purse strings immediately to complete a second Ohio turnpike survey.

The governor announced he would attend the next meeting of the state controlling board to urge such action. But legislative members of the board appeared unimpressed.

"What's all the rush?" inquired Sen. Tom V. Moorehead (R-Muskingum) and Rep. J. Frank McClure (R-Ashland). Because they head Senate and House finance committees, both are members of the board that passes on release of state funds.

The legislators indicated they wanted a lot of questions answered to their satisfaction before they would turn loose more than a half million dollars.

S. O. Linzell, Lausche's highway director, said he would request the money to complete a survey of a toll road between Cincinnati and Conneaut with a Toledo spur. But it requires approval of four members of the five-man board to release funds.

Other members besides Lausche and the legislators are Atty. Gen. C. William O'Neill and State Auditor James A. Rhodes. Lausche's opponent in the governor's successful bid for a fifth term. Lausche is the lone Democrat.

State officials usually send representatives to act for them at board meetings. That makes a governor's appearance significant.

Lausche has termed a second turnpike the keystone in Ohio's road building program and the Ohio Turnpike Commission has given its blessing to the 390-mile project.

Linzell, a commission member by virtue of his state post, emphasized that funds advanced for turnpike surveys would be repaid from money received from sale of revenue bonds issued to build the toll road.

The course was followed on the east-west turnpike now under construction for 241 miles across northern Ohio for opening next Oct. 1.

The controlling board last January released $135,000 for a feasibility study of a North-South route after considerable controversy. McClure and Moorehead held back for several months until they got a go signal from fellow legislators at a special highway session of the General Assembly. A newspaper dubbed them the "bottleneck twins."

Both agreed at that time to release funds to complete the North-South survey if the preliminary study demonstrated that a second turnpike was feasible.

Engineers reporting on the preliminary survey said a second turnpike was feasible but expressed concern that revenues from users might be too low to attract bond buyers.

That apparently doomed a second turnpike until Linzell and others reported changes had brightened the picture. The highway director cited "recent lowering of construction costs, an altered time table and other factors which should be used to present a more realistic appraisal."

"The results of the preliminary

Sokolsky's These Days

It is no secret that an attack on the FBI has long been in the making. It started in the Truman Administration when Max Lowenthal, a New York lawyer, wrote a book which was a violent attack on the FBI, not a studied criticism but a propaganda to break down popular faith in this organization. This was followed by some magazine articles along the same lines.

During the McCarthy-Stevens Hearings an effort was made to drag the FBI and J. Edgar Hoover into the case by constant references to them, the enemies of the FBI hoping that somehow they would be able to prove that FBI flies were being given to the McCarthy and other Committees of Congress.

All these efforts flopped because the American people stood by this investigation agency, and the personal popularity of J. Edgar Hoover has not suffered from these attacks.

The FBI, like any other agency which uses taxpayers' money, should be subject to criticism, analysis, scrutiny. No government agency should be sacrosanct. But the type of attack now used is not criticism; it is an effort to give a false impression that the FBI is doing what it has no right to do and therefore is setting itself up as a cultural police force. This is literally untrue.

Germany Studies Paris Accords

BONN, Germany (AP)—The Paris agreements to free and rear West Germany have gone to Bundestag committees after receiving preliminary approval from the lower house of parliament.

Despite the initial success, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's drive for quick ratification appeared certain to face serious difficulties when the pact returns to the chamber next month for key readings.

Winding up a two-day debate on the first reading the Bundestag agreed without a recorded vote to send the controversial agreements to committees for study.

studies, modified by the changes mentioned, indicate that the turnpike has excellent possibilities of attracting investment capital at reasonable interest rates and that the studies should be continued to the final stage.

McClure and Moorehead said they wanted detailed information on the reasons for Linzell's stand in the face of an apparently adverse survey report. The legislators indicated that his reasons had better be good.

And they said the controlling board has no further meetings planned this year.

But the State Sundry Claims Board, composed of the same members as the controlling board, has four meetings scheduled before the year ends. The board that passes on claims against the state could resolve itself into the controlling board at any time it chose.

The 101st General Assembly begins its session Jan. 3 and may take another look at the problem.

Legislators said McClure and Moorehead appeared likely to retain their finance committee chairmanships in the new session. That would continue them on the controlling board and require convincing action to win their approval of final survey funds.

Other members of the board in addition to Lausche have favored turnpikes.

Hal Boyle Says:

Don't Modernize Christmas

NEW YORK (AP)—If a grinning, skinny old man wearing a neatly clipped gray mustache, a pink shirt, and a stylish charcoal black suit climbs down your chimney on Christmas Eve, don't shoot him or phone for the police.

He may be Santa Claus! Christmas has gone so modernistic that, sooner or later, someone is going to start a movement to take away old Santa's beard, put him on a diet and turn him into a fashion plate.

But do we want that? Would it really improve Santa Claus to make him look like one of those neat, crisp fellows in the men of distinction ads?

The great value of Santa Claus has been that he makes no effort to keep up with the times, and has remained jolly and changeless and old-fashioned for centuries, a symbol of selfless kindness.

It is a mistake to try to modernize great traditions, and Christmas is a great tradition. But in recent years it has been getting more and more arty and, perhaps, less and less hearty.

Take the Christmas tree itself. Any person of middle age can recall the shared joy of a time when decorating the Christmas tree was a matter of family pride. Everybody took part—Dad, Mom, and the kids.

Practically all the ornaments were homemade. Remember the thrill of threading popcorn and cranberries to rope the green tree with strands of white and red? Remember cutting long slivers of tinfoil from cigarette wrappers hoarded for months? And remember the moment of ecstasy when Dad, standing on a stepladder, carefully fastened the cardboard star, covered with tinfoil, to the very top of the tree?

Probably in thousands of homes this simple family ritual still goes on unchanged, except that most of the ornaments now are bought at the ten-cent store.

But in many other homes the

Christmas tree has become so arty, so tortured out of shape, it is unrecognizable. You go into a guy's home and ask him what he's doing with a clothes rack in his living room, and he replies indignantly:

"What do you mean—clothes rack? That's our Christmas tree."

To make one of these modernistic Christmas trees, the last thing in the world you want is an actual tree. First you need a course in expressionism in the nearest art school. Then you take a stuffed moose head, and lay a piece of bone - white driftwood across its widespread antlers. Next you tear apart an old mattress, then attach the coils of springs to the antlers with a pair of pliers.

Man, you've got something—the most up-to-date Christmas tree on the block, even if you have to explain to the neighbors what it is.

The same situation holds true with Christmas cards. There was a time when you could pick up a Christmas card and tell what it was by how it looked and the message printed on it. If you can do that today, the card is regarded as a flop.

Maybe I'm just getting to be a middle-aged fog. But don't most of us look back to a time when Christmas, always a season of the flowering spirit, had more of heart than art in it? Let us make the modernists keep their paws off Santa Claus. He's perfect as he is.

Low Tariffs Hurting U.S. Potters, Claim

WASHINGTON (AP)—Japanese competition since the war has "practically strangled" the American chinaware business, a domestic industry spokesman told the tariff commission Friday.

J. J. Stein said the American industry flatly opposes any attempt to reduce tariffs on Japanese chinaware imports.

Stein is secretary-manager of the California Pottery Guild of Los Angeles, whose membership produces about 95 per cent of the earthen and chinaware made in California.

He was one of a number of industry spokesmen who appeared before the commission to urge that tariffs on imported pottery—chiefly from Japan—be left at their present level.

The commission and the committee for reciprocity information are preparing a report for use at a February conference in Geneva.

Switzerland, concerning the possible reduction of certain tariffs on goods imported from Japan and other countries.

It was Stein's contention that the Japanese industry is able to undersell American manufacturers because its wages are about one-tenth those of the industry.

Other industry spokesmen scheduled to testify before the commission were: Joseph M. Wells, president of the Homer Laughlin China Co., East Liverpool, Ohio; and Frank Hull of the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters of Toledo, Ohio.
